BUILDERS IN BATTLE ON STREET

Two Gallivan Boulevard House Workers Go to Hospital; Many Badly Beaten

It started like any other day in Dorchester when more than a score of carpenters, masons, plasterers and other tradesmen went to work in a row of houses in Gallivan blvd. today, but when police untangled the situation two men were in hospitals, a third was under arrest and the remainder were nursing various hurts.

A free-for-all battle took place between the vigorous workers after Daniel Dwyer, 30, of Benedict st., Somerville, is alleged to have struck Angelo Russi, 60, of Garden ct., North End., during an altercation.

As the battle with saws, crowbars, sledge hammers, rocks, joists, hammers and other informal large and small arms warmed up, it moved from the house sites out into the middle of Gallivan blvd., near Morton st., effectively tieing up traffic.

NO HOLDS BARRED

In the melee, John Marganaro, 26, of North Anderson st., Boston, was struck in the mouth by a sledge-hammer declared to have been swung by Dwyer.

White uniforms of plasterers soon were red with gore from their hurts and from frequent descents to the pavement under impulsion from some sturdy section of two-by-four or quick, decisive tap of a hammer.

A policeman seized one contestant as he was sawing feverishly at the leg of another, but the captive freed himself and got lost in the battle again.

RIOT SQUAD CALLED.

A number of telephone calls were sent by neighbors to Mattapan station and a riot squad was rushed to the scene, only a few blocks away.

After several minutes of determined effort, the police finally divided up the mass into its component parts, individual by individual.

Then Dwyer, with a long, ugly scalp wound, was sent to City Hospital, while Marganaro was sent to Forest Hills Hospital.

The rest of the workers doctored themselves and most of them eventually returned to work.

Michael Como, 35, of Central ave., Malden, was off for the day, however, due to his being placed under arrest charged with assault and battery with a crowbar.

Police said they will apply for a warrant tomorrow against Dwyer for alleged assault and battery, also.

All Chicago Hunting Reporter's Slayer

Chicago, June 10 (INS)—That an imported gunman from Brooklyn killed Alfred "Jake" Lingle was the theory police worked on today as the inquest was adjourned.

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—One of the greatest murder hunts Chicago ever has seen was organized today to track down the man who killed Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, 38-year-old reporter for the Tribune, yesterday.

Rewards totaling $30,000 were posted—$25,000 by the Tribune and $5000 by the Chicago Evening Post. The Press Club of Chicago issued a statement that it stood ready to post an additional $10,000.

Lingle was instrumental in tracking down eight robbers in as many years for Arthur Cutten, prominent grain trader and personal friend. This circumstance held place today in a multitude of theories on motives for the slaying.

TRAPPED 8 OF GANG.

The Cutten home in Downers Grove was invaded by nine robbers eight years ago. After looting the place they left Cutten locked in a vault to suffocate. He was rescued by a houseman, who had wriggled free from bonds.

Mr. Cutten vowed to spare neither time nor expense to bring the nine to justice. He sought the aid of Lingle, who was credited with the work that eventually landed eight of the criminals in prison. The ninth was expected to be captured shortly.

Two hundred or more persons were within a few feet of Lingle when he was shot down yesterday afternoon, yet the slayer not only escaped, but left witnesses with a confusion of stories as to just what happened.

KILLER WORE GLOVES.

Early today the investigators revisited the murder scene—the subway that dips under Michigan blvd. at Randolph st. and leads to the Illinois Central Station. They wanted to recheck every possible means of escape that the slayer may have taken, and if possible to pick up some further clue to him.

Already they had the killer's

3 of Family Die in Gas Mystery

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Unusual circumstances surrounding the deaths, probably last Friday, of a family of three, all asphyxiated in their bedrooms, carefully converted into execution chambers, led police today to believe the mother was responsible for the deed.

The dead were James J. Cross, 55, a retired saloonkeeper; his wife, Mary J., 65, and their daughter, Mary, 34.

JANE ADDAMS RAPS EVIL IN ENFORCEMENT

Jane Addams, world-famed social worker, today scored the method of prohibition enforcement, at the same time not favoring any change in the law which would take it from the statute books.

In an interview today at the Ernest Amory Codman home, 227 Beacon st., where she is staying, she declared:

"I do not think the prohibition situation in this country is being well-handled. I am not in favor of rigorous penalties for enforcement.

"I do believe in keeping prohibition as it is. If the law is changed now we will never know what it might have accomplished."

LEADER FOR HUMANITY.

Miss Addams is the veteran director of Hull House, Chicago, one of the earliest and best known settlement houses in the country.

She has taken a militant part all her life in working for the betterment of social conditions among poor people. She is taking an important part in the national convention of social workers in Boston.

"I believe the situation existing today at the result of poor enforcement is decidedly serious, but I am not in favor of dramatic raids or penitentiary sentences as a panacea for the evil," she declared.

"Although I do not know the estimate, I believe it is fair and safe to say that there is less than 50 per cent as much liquor in the country as there was before prohibition.

"Almost anyone who works with poor people, either factory superintendents or officers in mutual benefit societies, report that conditions are improved. This may not be true for a certain type of young man who

2 HURT AS FIRE STATION WALL COLLAPSES

Workman Trapped by Falling Blocks at the New Central Quarters; One May Die

A wall of Boston's new $330,000 central fire station in Bowdoin sq.—subject of much dispute and criticism—collapsed today, injuring two men, one of them so seriously that he may die.

John McCarthy, 68, of 173 M st., South Boston, a workman on the building, was carried down with the heavy granite blocks and trapped beneath them.

McCarthy was removed to Haymarket Relief Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

THOUSANDS RUSH TO SCENE

Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene in belief that the entire building had collapsed, burying many workmen.

McCarthy was working on a staging above the sidewalk of Bulfinch st. when the wall collapsed, carrying down staging and all.

A number of pedestrians passing the structure narrowly escaped being struck by some of the blocks as they bounced over the pavement after dropping.

SEES SOMETHING PHONEY

"There's been something phony about this building from the start," he declared. "The delay in getting on with the building has been a mystery to the taxpayers of the city.

"I introduced an order into the Council several months ago suggesting that another floor be added to the building, but the building authorities said they did not have enough money."

Foley May Combat Questioning of Grand Jurors; Prosecutor Plans Bitter Battle

Striking another blow at the Suffolk district attorney's office, counsel for Oliver B. Garrett, former policeman, today won the right to file eight new motions charging irregularities in the indictment of Garrett, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch.

The eight new motions, and three additional ones for bills of particulars, were permitted to be filed by Judge William A. Burns, who set 2 p. m. next Monday as the hour for hearing all arguments.

Herbert F. Callahan, Garrett counsel, who yesterday filed 28 motions attacking the indictments, explained that the additional papers were not completed by his stenographer in time to be filed within the 10-day limit which expired last night.

Court permitted recording of the motions, four to quash indictments against Garrett and his wife, four pleas of abatement in their cases and three for bills of particulars.

39 MOTIONS IN ALL

Seventeen motions to quash, eight pleas of abatement and three for bills of particulars were filed last night, making a total of 31 motions to quash (seven for each defendant), 12 pleas of abatement (four for each defendant) and six for bills of particulars (two for each defendant) which will be argued on Monday.

The eight new motions attacked the indictments in the same language appearing in yesterday's papers, charging that the indictments of record are not as voted by the grand jury, which, it is claimed, did not vote on each count involved.

The motions were reported to Judge Burns today by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle. Attorney Callahan was not present in the court when date for their argument was set.

In view of the nature of the attack he is making, Callahan is expected to summon several, if not all, members of the special grand jury session which indicted Gar-

WICKERSHAM TALK HAILED BY ANTIS; LAUDED IN PART BY DRYS

MRS. PEABODY WOULD HAVE HIM OUSTED

longer a competent person to serve on President Hoover's law commission, of which he is chairman.

Mr. Wickersham said in his address that he favored modification of the Volstead act and that the English system of handling the liquor situation is superior to the American prohibitory law.

Less caustic criticism came from other drys, who expressed approval of many parts of his address among them the one in which he urged a "wholesome respect for the prohibition law."

Varied opinions were exchanged as to what effect his remarks may have on the coming campaign for repeal the Baby Volstead act next November in Massachusetts.

Dry leaders declared that the people will rise in mass, that the Massachusetts law is here to stay, as is the federal law.

The antis expressed a feeling that the address of the Attorney-General under the Taft administration will carry great weight in swinging the fight in the Bay State.

High praise for the address was given by Conrad W. Crooker of the Liberal Civic League. Crooker was the only prominent anti-prohibition leader to issue an extended comment.

Julian Codman of the Constitutional Liberty League declared that the address required careful reading and that he preferred to withhold comment for the present.

"It is not a matter for snap judgment," he said.

In his speech at the Boston Garden last night Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, came out for modification of the prohibition law.

The prevailing liquor control in England and Welsh communities where saloons sell drinks under regulation and during restricted hours, was not only increasing temperance there but adding materially to the prosperity and happiness of the younger generations, he pointed out.

Young people in Great Britain were directing their talents to gainful forms of activities and recreational sports, he said, while drinking had measurably decreased among them.

With the British system of control held up as a model for United States prohibition officials to take cognizance of, Wickersham's direct blow against prohibition enforcement as conducted in this country elicited prolonged applause from more than 5000 social workers.

HITS PRISON SYSTEM

His attack on the national prohibition law climaxed a scholarly address on the vicissitudes of law enforcement with the repeated statement that extreme and increased penalties are no deterrent to crime or to law violations, and that a comprehensive study of prison conditions in this country was needed.

He repeated the testimony given during the last few months before the Royal Commission on Licensing in England and Wales by government officials, who testified to the steady decrease in drunkenness in London during the last 23 years. This they attributed to better education.

Wickersham, former attorney-general, particularly flayed the lack of education of the public on the value of prohibition prior to the enactment of the legislation itself.

He pointed to this lack as one of the principal reasons for the failure to bring about the object of the Eighteenth Amendment. He pointed to the educational program adopted in Britain as the means of successful solution of the liquor problem over there.

Wickersham also flayed the present method of dealing with criminal offenders, branding American prisons as breeding places of crime and schools where innocent harmless, adventurous youths were transformed into heartless, demoralized and hardened criminals.

He attributed much of the crime prevalent in the country to the effect of the prison system.

Leaders Comment on Wickersham Speech

Comments on prohibition address of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the President's special commission on law enforcement, delivered last night at Boston Garden, at National Conference of Social Work:

JULIAN CODMAN, of Constitutional Liberties League—I have not yet had a chance to read the Wickersham address in full. The whole matter is one that requires thought. It would be silly to give a snap judgment.

CONRAD W. CROOKER—Very early in his administration as the Hoover Commission, Mr. Wickersham clearly indicated the way in which his mind was pointing with reference to the practical effect of federal prohibition as an experimental effort to make America temperate by force and even by force of arms if necessary. His more recent utterances have followed this line and his statement in Boston last night probably pretty well forecasts the ultimate attitude of his commission upon this question.

ARTHUR J. DAVIS, State Superintendent of Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League—I was present at Boston Garden and heard Mr. Wickersham's address. With the greater part of it I am in accord. Frequently I have emphasized the need for educational work. No one can question but what the ultimate objective is willing obedience to the prohibition law as well as to other laws. One must not overlook, however, that education will seldom prove effective in dealing with those who for personal gain commercialize any form of vice. Those who violate the laws even in their country for gain, bribe and corrupt officials and resort even to murder can seldom if ever be reached by educational endeavor. The strong arm of the law is our only resort in such cases. The reports that I have received from England and Wales attribute the decrease in drinking chiefly to the high price of liquor and to the straitened financial circumstances of millions of citizens of these countries.

MRS. HENRY W. PEABODY, Beverly—I was not at the meeting and I have not yet read the papers. I was told over the telephones last night in substance what Mr. Wickersham said, but my informants did not put it in the way the newspaper headlines have it. I did not understand that he declared for modification, or that he did not believe in prohibition, which is a part of our constitution. If he did express opposition to our prohibition system and if he prefers the English system, then I believe he is hardly competent to lead a commission on the study of our laws, including that of prohibition in an impartial manner. Beyond this I have no comment.

MRS. WILLIAM H. BROWN, president of the Law Enforcement League of Massachusetts—I agree that education is the most valuable part of temperance work. I think we have not done as much in this line as we should have in the past 10 years. I agree with Mr. Wickersham that the Jones Act is too drastic. I do not agree with him that the English method is more of a success than ours. I think that every effort should be made to create public opinion on favor of the Eighteenth Amendment. It is part of our constitution. Mr. Wickersham does not for a moment think that it should be repealed or ever can be. Therefore, the only possibility for temperance in this country is to work for enforcement.

MRS. ELIZABETH H. TILTON, prominent dry leader, Cambridge—I heard Mr. Wickersham's address and spoke to him afterward. I do not understand that he favors giving up national prohibition. All he asked us to do was to help by sensible means and not to hinder prohibition.

England had a declining drink consumption, as Mr. Wickersham mentioned, due to better recreation and health measures, but it also has a great poverty which always decreases drink consumption. We are further advanced in health and recreation measures than England. We have had less drink consumption in days of prosperity. I believe the General Federation of Women's Clubs was right when it declared that sinister forces are at work to break down prohibition. Booze and billionaires, that tells the story.

BOY BANDIT IS SLAIN BY POSSE AT NASHUA

Two Others in Agofsky Gang Are Caught Asleep in Car With Rifles Across Knees

Nashua, N. H., June 10—Joseph Agofsky's brief but exciting career as a bandit ended early today on a cot in Memorial Hospital.

The 20-year-old boy, sought by police of many cities and towns for his daring depredations, died this morning from bullet wounds inflicted yesterday after he had been cornered in Pine Hill road woods and attempted to escape.

A short time before, police had captured Agofsky's 18-year-old brother Frank, and Harry Cameron Young, 21, of Methuen, as they slept in a stolen automobile with rifles across their knees.

All three captives were, for several hours hid their identities under fictitious names, were charged with numerous automobile thefts and gasoline station and store holdups.

WEAKENED, SURRENDERS.

In the car in which Frank Agofsky and Young were captured, police declared they found a large quantity of loot, secured in several holdups.

Police suspected that a third man was somewhere in the vicinity and began a hunt for him, locating the bandit leader in the woods. The officers shouted for him to surrender, but Agofsky ran. Two bullets struck him, one in the back and one in a leg.

An hour later the elder Agofsky emerged from the woods and surrendered, weak from loss of blood.

The trio confessed, according to police, that they exchanged shots with a policeman in Westford, Mass., a week ago and that one of their holdups was in Ayer, Mass., where they secured $1500 in loot.

CRIMINAL AT 17

Although Joseph Agofsky, formerly of Lawrence, but lately of Fairfield, Ct., and Bridgeport, began his career of crime in 1927, when he was 17 years old, his most desperate adventures have been crowded into the past month.

According to police allegation he, with his brother and Young, have carried on depredations from Stamford, Ct., up into New Hampshire, but concentrating in Lawrence, Methuen and Andover.

PLANS CHANGED FOR TURNPIKE

Only 12 miles of the new turnpike between Boston and Worcester will be built by the Commonwealth this year instead of the 18-mile stretch originally contemplated, it was learned today.

The original proposal was to have the first stretch extend from Lake Quinsigamond bridge in Shrewsbury to Framingham but it has now been decided to stop work on the first stretch at White's corner, just west of Fayville. There has been some difficulty regarding the course which the highway should take through Fayville and in order to prevent any possible delay the decision to stop at White's corner was made.

State engineers from the Public Works Department estimate the cost of the first 12-mile stretch will reach 2,700,000. They also point out that the work will be spread out over a two-year period as it will be impossible to complete the job before late fall.

It is understood at the State House that the county commissioners are having some difficulty in reaching agreement with Fayville property owners who would be damaged by the taking of land necessary.

reet and the two women on charges of conspiracy to extort, bribery and threats.

SAYS HE HAS PROOF

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, it is expected, will oppose such a move.

As regards his plans, Callahan would make no comment today, but the motions set forth that the defendant will verify his claims "by testimony at hearing of this plea."

Stung by the implication in the attack by the defense, Dist. Atty. Foley is more than ever determined to try the defendants at the earliest possible date. If the defense motions are denied, he will seek immediate trial.

GRAFT TRIALS FIRST

Either an error in the district attorney's office or a plot to try the Garret case on issues not set by the grand jury appears to be implied in the defense allegations and the district attorney, while he would make no comment because the proceeding is one effecting the grand jury, is known to resent the charges.

While not definitely committed to try Garrett on the graft charge before the less important "pension larceny," Dist. Atty. Foley feels that would be the best procedure and it will be followed unless court decision on the new motions is too long delayed. The court has already denied motions to quash the pension indictment.

SAYS HE PAID GRAFT

John F. Sullivan, former Ritz Hotel proprietor, who will be the star witness at the trial of graft charges, as he was at the Attorney-General's inquiry and again before the grand jury, is said to be ready to appear in court at any time.

He claims to have made payment of graft to Garrett, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Hatch, former matron at the Ritz cloakroom, for protection of traffic at the hotel during a period when Garrett was leading a headquarters raiding squad.

Tied Up, Starving Dog Breaks Chain

Concord, N. H., June 10—Police Officer Albert H. Manuel of Franklin reported an unusual experience, one which brings more honor to dogs.

While walking to his home on the outskirts of Franklin, Officer Manuel noted that a large shepherd dog would run out of the woods barking at the approach of an automobile and then dash out of sight.

Mystified by the maneuver, the officer decided to investigate. Several hundred feet from the highway he found a grown police dog, partly famished, imprisoned in a small clump of trees. The animal had evidently been tied up somewhere and had broken away, dragging a long cabin chain and piece of wire with him.

Hits Brutal Dry Penalty

SCORING DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT methods, Jane Adams, America's beloved dean of social workers, today gave Lois Kennedy of the Boston Evening American a remarkably clear and interesting interview. She sees prohibition as a benefit, but believes severe penalties are a mistake. And she gives an especial message to women. SENATORS ACT TO GET SECRET NAVAL PAPERS

Plan to Postpone Decision on Treaty Until Hoover Yields Documents

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service

Washington, June 10—Postponement of the London naval treaty until President Hoover furnishes all the secret documents relating to it will be proposed today to the Senate foreign relations committee, it was learned here.

Except for a few hand-picked papers, President Hoover has withheld the documents from the committee, although the Senate, under the Constitution, is a partner in the treaty-making power.

The latest move is designed to force the President to submit all the documents, which are regarded as essential to proper consideration of the treaty.

A resolution sharply assailing the administration for defying the committee also will be offered, it was revealed by Senator Johnson (R.) of California, following yesterday's meeting.

With opposition to the treaty increasing, efforts are being pressed to obtain signatures to the round robin to defer the special Senate session to consider the treaty until November 17. President Hoover has threatened the session immediately following adjournment.

More than 20 names already have been secured, with pledges that several additional senators will favor the postponement. If the special session is called, a motion to recess it until November will be made. Treaty foes are confident of securing the majority necessary for the recess.

A counter petition was started yesterday to line up senators to move against a recess in the special session until the treaty is disposed of. Senators Capper and Allen, of Kansas, and Vandenberg, of Michigan, are understood to be pushing the effort.

Senator Johnson and his militant group kicked up a lively row in committee yesterday over the refusal of the secret papers. There was considerable support to his view, although it was understood that the two London delegates, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Reed, of Pennsylvania, together with Chairman Borah and Senator Swanson, of Virginia, sought to make a case for the President. The latter four are the senators relied upon by Mr. Hoover to put over the treaty will all possible haste.

Capital Drys Uneasy Over Wickersham

Washington, June 10 (INS)—Georgo W. Wickersham's outspoken criticism of the American prohibition experiment, made in Boston before an audience of social workers, caused considerable uneasiness among the dry forces in the capital.

Wickersham said, in effect, that American courts and the statute penalties were too severe, and in contrast he cited the progress that has been made in controlling the liquor question in England and Wales by license and regulation, accompanied by education.

Few of the dry leaders would comment today on Wickersham's speech for publication purposes, but privately they were seriously perturbed and inclined to ask whether the chairman of President Hoover's law observance and enforcement commission has "gone wet."

The Wickersham commission has now been investigating prohibition and law enforcement centrally for more than a year. It has already made one voluminous report which was not exactly pleasing to the radical drys, although the report studiously evaded a direct expression on the wisdom of the experiment of national prohibition.

There was a good deal of speculation today, too, as to whether President Hoover was aware of Wickersham's speech before he made it. Inasmuch as most of the commission's members are in Washington, it is believed that Mr. Hoover probably was as much surprised as some of the dry leaders by the vigor with which his aspersions criticized. "The great experiment."

Meanwhile, the chief recommendations of the Wickersham committee for modification of the drastic Jones act, and the relief of court congestion, have been nearly pigeon-holed in the Senate. The House has approved of them, but the Senate has referred them to a sub-committee where they will slumber until next year at least.

TINKHAM THREATENS NEW EXPOSE OF BISHOP CANNON'S SECRETS

WILL REVEAL REASON FOR LOBBY DEFI

Bay Stater Says the Committee Has the Facts About Churchman's "Deals"

Washington, June 10 (INS)—Irrespective of whether the Senate lobby investigating committee calls Bishop James Cannon, Jr., to the stand again, information now in the committee's hands will be made public—probably from the floor of the House by Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts.

Tinkham is acquainted with the information the committee has in its possession and unless they recall Cannon and question him, Tinkham asserted today he will reveal the facts.

"If the lobby committee acts, well and good," he said. "If it does not, I will place the real reason why Bishop Cannon is afraid to be subjected to questioning before the people of the United States and let them judge."

This leaves the lobby committee in somewhat of a hole. If the members decide not to recall Cannon they face the embarrassment of having a member of the House, famous for his anti-prohibition speeches, tell the country what they have failed to bring out in the Cannon case. As one senator, not a member of the committee but aware of the facts, said today:

"Bishop Cannon had nothing to lose by defying the committee.

"The committee has some interesting documents in regard to the bishop's financial activities in 1928 when E. C. Jameson was giving him that $65,300 in the anti-Smith fight."

Caraway Not With Cannon in Defi; Probers Are to Act

Washington, June 10—Contrary to previous impressions, Senator Caraway last night revealed he is undecided whether Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was in contempt when he defied the Senate lobby committee.

Upon his return from Arkansas, Chairman Caraway said he will call the committee in session to determine what should be done about the bishop's refusal to testify.

In an unusual interview, Caraway frankly admitted that he spoke without knowledge of all the facts when he issued his statement at Little Rock, saying the bishop was within his rights in refusing to testify about political activities. He added:

Going further, the committee chairman apologized to Senators Walsh and Blaine for giving the impression that he was trying to overrule their contention that Cannon must testify about his campaign against Al Smith in 1928.

DOG KILLS PIGS, ATTACKS MAN

Brockton, June 10—A police dog leaped five feet over a fence into the pig pen owned by Michael Donahue of Peterson ave., in the east side section of the city, killed three pigs, weighing 200 pounds each, and then attacked Donahue as he approached. The dog escaped.

The pigs were of the prize caliber and the loss is extremely heavy to the owner. Donahue was aroused from his sleep by the unusual noise from the pig pen. When he reached the pen a police dog leaped over the fence and pounced on him. Donahue suffered several bits on the legs and hands before he drove the dog off. A squad of officers searched the neighborhood for the dog in vain.

SEIZE BOAT IN SHELLFISH WAR

In its campaign against the taking of shellfish from prohibited contaminated areas, the State for the first time in its history has seized and will sell a vessel used in the illicit venture, Z. A. Howes, supervisor of commercial fisheries in the department of conservation, revealed today.

Seizure of the boat, whose last recorded registrant is Albert Smith of Winthrop, the officials say, followed conviction in Quincy court of Thomas and Harry Mason of East Boston, on charges of taking shellfish from banned flats of Quincy bay.

From now on, Howes declared, he will seek to bring about the seizure of boats involved in such operations.

CAROL PARDONS 20,000, ORDERS FOES TO TRIAL

Princess Helene Unreconciled to New King of Rumania as He Seeks Cabinet

Bucharest, Rumania, June 10 (AP)—King Carol professed today to have forgotten the activities of political enemies against him while he was in exile in France, but he moved quickly to punish those who committed new offenses.

Learning that Dr. C Angelescu, minister of education in the last cabinet of M. V. and J. Bratiano, had spoken disrespectfully of him at a Liberal meeting yesterday, Carol ordered him prosecuted immediately with Dr. Kostinesco, mayor of Bucharest, and Dr. Demetrescu Braila, former minister of health.

Their party, named Liberal, but actually ultra-Conservative, was said to have voted yesterday not to support the monarchy, although not suggesting revolution.

PARDONS FOR 20,000.

In contrast to these moves, Carol ordered that all charges of a partisanable nature against 20,000 persons still accountable for military offenses during the World War, be quashed.

It still was a moot question whether Princess Helene would become reconciled with Carol—which the king desires very much. Latest reports said Carol will be crowned in October at Alba Julia, without a queen at his side, but attended by his little son, Michael, as Prince of Alba Julia.

HELENE TO DEPART

It was believed today Helene would choose a home away from the capital but near enough to watch the education of her son by Carol. She is a princess of Greece, but has no status in her own country now, and so may not return there.

Strong forces are being brought to bear to gain her consent to annulment of her divorce from Carol.

Meanwhile the new sovereign was engaged in forming a cabinet to replace that of M. Mironescu, which resigned as soon as parliament had proclaimed Carol king. He asked Prof. Nicolas Jorga, his old tutor, to become premier, but Jorga could promise no success. Iuliu Maniu, resigned peasant premier, then was summoned, and indications were he was ready to accept.

RUTH MIX'S MA RELENTS

Hollywood, June 10 (INS)—A mother's belated blessing of the union today awaited Ruth Jane Mix, 17, daughter of Tom Mix, and her newly acquired husband, Douglas Gilmore, screen actor, and a native of Boston, as they motored toward Los Angeles from Yuma, Arizona, where they were married yesterday after an elopement.

Through Atty. A. P. Michael Narlian, the girl's mother, Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, indicated she would forgive her daughter and the bridegroom, despite first reports that annulment proceedings would be instituted.

"Now that they've done it, we may as well make the best of it," was the mother's message relayed by Narlian.

Mrs. Mix was divorced from Tom Mix in 1917, and was given custody of the daughter, Ruth.

Though she gained a husband, the day-old bride loses an income of $250 a month through the elopement. Her father has been paying this amount for her support, but Narlian said the payments would cease with the marriage.

Student Crew Sails for North Today

Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell and Henry Ford are expected to be on hand today when the two-masted schooner George B. Cluett sails from Battery wharf with a cargo of hospital and other supplies for the far north.

The George B. Cluett, one of Sir Wilfred's fleet, is commanded by Capt. Kenneth Iverson and carries a crew of college men for the annual summer trip to Labrador and Newfoundland.

Ford and Sir Wilfred are old friends and the automobile magnate planned to drive to Boston from Wayside Inn at Sudbury to witness the departure of the schooner.

The craft, of British registry, will proceed to Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, the first step. She is driven by newly-installed Diesel engines which give her a speed of nine miles an hour. The second step will be Sydney, where the ship will be refueled, and the course will then be laid through the Strait of Belle Isle into the Labrador region.

Robert S. Hurlbut, 18-year-old son of the late dean of Harvard, will be on board as a member of the crew. Young Hurlbut, whose home is at 90 Brattle st., Cambridge, will enter Harvard in September. He was graduated from Belmont Hill School this month.

thinks it is smart to know where he can buy a drink and consume it surreptitiously.

LESS "TREATING" NOW

"But the old system of eight or ten men treating one another in the corner saloon on the way home from work has vanished, taking away the temptation for a man to spend more and drink more than he wanted."

Turning to a lighter subject, but one no less dear to her heart, Miss Addams said:

"I believe with the progress that women are making it is inevitable for them to go into the business world and play an active part.

"With their advance in education comes the freedom of choosing their occupations. It is a different problem for a mother with young children, but when she can arrange for them to have adequate and intelligent care, I think she is entitled to do as her judgment directs."

Miss Addams is little disturbed over the communistic propaganda that sometimes drifts through the country.

"During the recent unemployment period when there were large groups of men disturbed, they offered fertile soil for communistic talk," she said.

SEES RUSSIA'S FAILURE

"Now that the Communists have their own party, recent elections have shown that they are fewer in number than they were before.

"As for Russia's attempt to overthrow the churches, that is absurd. A great many towns in Russia were over-churched, but religion is too fundamental a part of people's lives for any government to eradicate it."

Miss Addams, in her many years of public service has known the outstanding personalities of the day. She knows President Hoover well, having worked with him in the food administration problem during and following the war.

"I believe him to be a very able man, but it is too soon to predict how he will succeed as President. He has been in office only a year and it is too soon to attempt to sum up his work.

TO SPEAK FRIDAY.

"It is difficult, too, to select the outstanding step made by our country until it has passed definitely into history. I think the most important thing we have accomplished in the past 10 years is the outlawry of war."

During her stay in Boston, Miss Addams is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman. She is scheduled to give several important talks at the Social Workers' Conference, speaking at a large mass meeting Friday evening in the Boston Garden.

This meeting, as all others of the conference, is open to the public.

'Sheer Brazen Impudence' on the Part of Senator Jones—What Is It on the Part of Pres. Hoover?

ED BENN, U. S. Marshal, brings about investigation that leads to indictment, on conspiracy charges, of

BILL WHITNEY, assistant prohibition administrator and federal czar in the Northwest, who was sought to get Benn's job and replace him with

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION, repudiates Whitney and passes a resolution endorsing Benn and asking that he be kept in office. Two days after this is done Whitney and other high-ups in federal circles are indicted on conspiracy charges, but

SENATOR WESLEY JONES, under whose patronage Whitney has built himself into a power, announces he will fight for them and persuades

PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER to send to the Senate for confirmation the name of Allen to supplant Benn as marshal immediately. If the

PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON will analyze this picture—of a United States Senator deliberately defying the expressed will of the people of this State and replacing in an important office a man who has brought about indictments against several officials with a man recommended by one of those indicted officials — they cannot help but believe that this is SHEER BRAZEN IMPUDENCE on the part of Senator Wesley Jones and tell him so.

The resolution indorsing Benn and asking that he be kept in office was passed by the Washington Republican State convention at Bellingham May 24 without a dissenting vote.

There were many witnesses, and almost as many different stories of what happened. Several, however, tentatively identified Rogue Gallery pictures of Sam Hunt, Capone gunman, as closely resembling the man who killed Lingle.

Hunt, carrying a shotgun in a golf bag, was arrested a fortnight ago on the northwest side shortly after a gang gunning in which the body of the victim was spirited away. He is out on bond under charges of carrying concealed weapons.

RECALLS MELLETT DEATH

Lingle is the first newspaperman, the Tribune pointed out, to be murdered since Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., editor, was slain in July, 1926, following his crusade against gangsters there. Lingle's 18 years as a Tribune reporter had been devoted largely to police reporting and investigation, a job that brought him into contact with most of the "big shot" gangsters of Chicago.

He was well acquainted with Al (Scarface) Capone, among others, and once was entertained at the Capone home in Miami.

Reputedly wealthy enough to retire, but staying on the job through pure joy of the work, Lingle was working on the chain of gang murders that have been committed within the last 10 days. He himself became the 11th victim.

The Tribune today said there appeared to be no direct motive. Lingle had been "covering" the underworld for the Tribune for years. He had come to know most of the gang leaders. He probably knew more policemen than any other person. Police Commissioner William Russell was one of his closest friends, their acquaintance having begun when Russell was walking a patrolman's beat 20 years ago.

DEFIED GANGSTERS

Because of his wide police acquaintance, the Tribune said, Lingle frequently was sought out by gangsters and racketeers who wanted him to use his "drag" to help them promote some illegal enterprise.

"Invariably he told them he could gain no such perussions for them, even if he tried," the Tribune said, "and that if they attempted to go ahead with their plans they would surely be brought to answer before the law."

Every branch of law enforcement promised full and unrelenting prosecution of the hunt for Lingle's slayer. Commissioner Russell said:

"I'd give my two eyes to solve the murder of Al Lingle. Nothing that I can do will be left undone."

Chief of Detectives Stege, who also was intimately acquainted with Lingle, said:

"I haven't much, but I would give all I have to be able to arrest the man who killed him. My time in the department is short, probably not more than nine months more, and every minute of every hour for the rest of my time in the department I will devote toward the apprehension of Al Lingle's slayer."

WARNED BY LOESCH.

"The murder of Mr. Lingle was intended as a warning to Chicago newspapers to stop going after gangsters. I have tried to tell people that gangsters eventually would start killing honest citizens. Gangsters are trying to terrorize the whole community. We must not submit."

Sweeping orders for a new roundup of gangsters were issued immediately after the body of Lingle was identified. Several arrests followed, but none of the prisoners was believed to have been the man who fired the single shot into the back of Lingle's head.

One man arrested was John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, former legislator, who police learned had sought Lingle's aid in starting a gambling racket. Lingle refused and police were told that McLaughlin threatened to "get even." McLaughlin denied ever making any threats and professed friendship for Lingle.

The slain newspaperman was married and the father of two small children. He was a native Chicagoan and began work at the Tribune as an office boy.

26TH DIVISION AIR CORPS ON PROBATION

That the Aviation Corps of the 26th Division of the Massachusetts National Guard has been on probation for the last three months, through failure to pass federal inspections, was learned in Boston today.

Unless the force passes federal muster at a special re-examination Friday night at South armory, there is danger of the government withdrawing its financial support.

These facts were revealed by Adj. Gen. Jesse F. Stevens today.

Unsatisfactory conditions at hangars caused the corps to be placed on probation on March 18, and its commander Maj. Louis E. Boutwell and the adjutant general were so notified at the time.

The corps has two hangars at Boston airport, neither of which, according to the inspectors, properly houses and protects Government property.

Inadequacy of room, leaky roofs, damaged walls and lack of heat to protect fuel oil were among the things that caused the inspectors to make unfavorable reports.

The corps has nine planes, all two-seaters. All were overhauled and put in A1 condition within a few months. The complement is 21 officers and 105 men, most of them from Greater Boston. Capt. E. Stanley Beck is operations officer.

Maj.-Gen. Alfred F. Foote, commanding the 26th Division, said today:

"The adjutant-general has administrative jurisdiction over all units in the division except in camp, when of course I am in command. I have no information about the air unit being on probation, but would point out that it is relatively unimportant.

"There are always one or two units to probation, it being solely a matter of percentage."

Baby Killed in Subway Fall; Taxicab Plunges in Tube

New York, June 10 (AP)—A little girl and a taxicab driver fell into subway excavations beneath the grand concourse last night and today in two accidents six blocks apart.

The little girl, Mary O'Reilly, 3, was killed. The taxicab driver, slightly injured, sent for a crane to pull his taxi out of the hole.

Mary was walking with her father, pushing a baby carriage, when she stepped into an opening in the wooden planking over the concourse at 206th st. It was a moment before her father missed her. Her body was found on the cement flooring 43 feet below, at the foot of a hole which had been made in the planking to permit the lowering of concrete.

The taxicab driver, David Leibowits, was rounding a corner at 197th st. about 4:30 a. m. when his cab skidded, ploughed through a wooden guard rail and dropped 40 feet.

BANK CLOSED IN BIG SHORTAGE

Cincinnati, June 10 (AP)—The Cosmopolitan Bank & Trust Co. was closed today by O. C. Gray, state superintendent of banks, after a shortage of from $375,000 to $500,000 was found in the bank accounts of the Henry L. Doherty Co. Cincinnati branch.

Gray said affairs of the Cosmopolitan bank have been turned over to the state banking commission and a thorough investigation will be made.

Scores of depositors swarmed around the bank at the time the institution was scheduled to open. County Prosecutor Nelson Schwab sent a corps of investigators to assist state bank examiners audit the bank's books. The Doherty Co. was one of the largest depositors in the Cosmopolitan bank.

Officials said a shortage of more than $1,000,000 existed in the books of Amos J. Shafer, former district manager of the Doherty company. The bank's capital, according to a published statement March 27, amounted to only $637,377.

Officials said the shortage was caused by stock market operations of Shafer. Shafer was arraigned on an embezzlement charge, waived examination and held for the grand jury under $15,000 bond.

WHEELER TRIAL IN BALTIMORE

Nathaniel Herbert Wheeler, alleged swindler of women, was ordered returned to Baltimore today, after a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Edward C. Jenney, in federal court.

An indictment returned in Baltimore, last month, charged him Wheeler with using the mails to defraud women investors in alleged worthless mining stock.

The only witness against him in court today was Mrs. Hattie Thompson of Baltimore. The indictment charges that in May, 1928, he induced her to enter a contract to pay him $30,000 to be invested in gold mining stock. She said she paid him $14,000.

Wheeler was arrested in a Boston hotel ten days ago.

What can be done with Life Insurance

(5) Guaranteed Education for the Children

COLLEGE education, which was once considered a luxury, later became an advantage, and is today a necessity.

In the average family, the question often is, How to ensure for the children this important preparation for living a life and earning a living? How to do this on limited means? How to safeguard them against the possible loss of the provider of both bread and education?

There is a way for parents to build a fund for this purpose—an Education Fund—through Life Insurance. The best time to begin is when the children are young and the saving plan through Life Insurance can be carried out over a long period of years.

Sunshine and Science Make this Better Macaroni

There are two outstanding reasons why Mueller's is America's largest selling brand of macaroni. First, the principal ingredient—a selected blend of choice farina—the heart of the wheat. Second, exclusive manufacturing processes that bring out all the flavor of the wheat and result in a macaroni that cooks up lighter and fluffier than any other. You'll appreciate the difference the first time you try Mueller's. Ask your grocer. He has Mueller's or can get it for you.

Macaroni Au Gratin

1 Pkg. Mueller's Macaroni; 2 Tbsps. butter; 2 Tbsps. flour; 2 Cups hot milk; 1 Tsp. salt; ½ Tsp. pepper; 2 Cups grated cheese; ½ Cup bread crumbs. Parboil macaroni 9 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. Melt butter, add flour, milk, seasonings. Cook until thick. Put layer of macaroni in greased baking dish, then layer of cheese, alternating with macaroni on top. Pour sauce over, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter. Set dish in hot water. Hub Man Favors Old Style, Tells Marion Davies

Hollywood, June 10—Women of each generation have been admired, loved, sought after by the man of that generation.

One could hardly expect the dandies of the '60's to enthuse over the flappers of 1930.

And, what women think of women in this generation, or what women thought of other women in generations past does not matter.

"Briefly, the point to the whole thing is simply 'that,' wrote Mrs. Ted H. Kline, 17825 Cannon ave., Lakewood, O. Her letter was one of the hundreds received today in the Marion Davies Fashion Contest at the New Pantages Theater, where Miss Davies' latest picture, "The Fiorodora Girl," is being shown.

"'Age cannot wither her nor custom stale her infinite variety.' In 1861, when great-grandmother kissed great-grandfather goodby and sent him away to the Southern battle fields to the strains of 'The Battle Cry of Freedom,' was she any the less sweet or alluring, less sought after, less loved because of the hoopskirts and crinolines, because of the long white pantalettes that fastened around her ankles, because of the unusual coiffures and poke bonnets of that by-gone era?

"Not a bit!

"In 1881, when grandmother wore a long skirt, with a tight-fitting basque, panniers and big bustles; when the coiffures were enormous and much artificial hair worn; when she did the polka, mazurka and the lancers, was she any the less sweet, alluring, less sought after, less loved?

"Not a bit!

"In 1890, when the new straight front and the habit back were the vogue, when the girls wore enormous pompadours with 'rats' in them, skirts that swept the ground and 'veranda' hats, was mother any less sweet, less alluring, less sought after, less loved?

"Ask Dad. He knows!

"In 1920, is the fourth generation with her bobbed hair, natural waistline, short skirts, et al, with her bare back, bare legs and her inability to dance anything but a fox trot, is she any less sweet, less alluring, less sought after, less loved?

"Of course not!"

Among the other letters were the following:

After years of emancipation it is almost impossible for the average woman to get back into the harness of long skirts and corsets. True enough, officers of the law would have fewer occasions to request parked cars to move on from lovers' lanes, since petting parties would be almost prohibitive.

Miss A. L. Chambers,
San Francisco, Cal.

In respect to mothers who are now old and grey, I believe the styles your mother and my mother wore in the gay nineties should be remembered from one generation to another.

Regardless of who wore them, mother always looked the best in them.

Folks in those days were justly proud of the fashions. Folks of today should be just as proud to wear them as they did in the gay nineties. I prefer the styles of yesterday to those of today.

John Kurshall,
6 Winston rd.,
Dorchester, Mass.

Can You Write On Style?

Do you remember the famous Fiorodora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your idear in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies at the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

NEW TREND IN SEASONING FOOD

Heightening Flavor Instead of Changing It the Secret

The problem of making certain wholesome foods tasty, used to be solved by serving them with rich, thick, flavorful sauces.

Cooks have discovered, however, that there is a much simpler and more wholesome method to make essential foods palatable. The use of sugar is one of the secrets.

A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt ideally heightens the flavor of bland vegetables or those which have lost the sugar content so apparent when fresh picked. Such use of sugar in restoring the flavor of peas, carrots, corn, string beans and turnips makes them more pleasing carriers of the vitamins, minerals and roughage they contain.

Doctors and dietitians recommend this use of sugar especially when children "shy" at these foods. They also are in favor of adding a dash of sugar to stewed fruits and tomatoes to modify their sharp taste.

Many cooks keep a mixture of sugar and salt on hand for seasoning purposes. Equal parts of sugar and salt are popular but the taste preferences of the family and the food in question should be considered. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar.

Letters From American Readers

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A Harvard professor, in discoursing about the future of marriage, let out this great fact that married men were more inventive than bachelors.

I asked a woman friend of mine, who told me that her husband was easy to live with because he was not fault-finding, why married men were more inventive than bachelors.

She turned around rather brusque in her motion and, rolling her eyes, said:

"Why, don't you really know? They have to be," was her laconic answer.

That was a stunner. More married men toe the mark with head down when the voices of their wives sound the bugle horn to right about face. Married men are more inventive because of the great magnetic influence back of them. Then it is a known fact that husbands with billy goat appetites are more inventive than the hubby who is always suffering with indigestion. The younger generation of husbands certainly respond to this inventiveness. I tell you, these professors studied human nature! They know that the proper study of mankind is husbands.

JOHN McCOTTA.

Favors Gown for Mayor of Boston, Also Sceptre

Editor Boston American:

That's a very good suggestion that I read in the papers about the mayor of Boston wearing an official regalia upon stated occasions. I have been side glancing at the official robes of office decorating the mayors of Maldon and Dorchester, England, who have been visiting Greater Boston recently.

Mayor Curley would look very dignified in a black silk gown trimmed with red with his crowned headgear marked with a diamond shaped shield with the letter "B" in gold, flaming all around his benign countenance.

We'll have to push this. Mayor Curley may need nothing to add to his attractions, but we can't let these English mayors put one over us with all their gold braid, dazzling in our eyes.

I would suggest, in addition, if an official regalia is forthcoming for the mayor of Boston, that a sceptre be included. Mayor Curley holding in his right hand a sceptre of authority, clad in a black silk gown, trimmed with red, like old King Canute, would take the wind out of those English mayors.

EDWARD T. TRACY.

Winthrop's Love Letters Very Fervent

Editor Boston American:

Some time ago I saw reference in your letter column to the love letters of Gov. Winthrop, first governor of Massachusetts. These letters were sent to his third wife. I have just read most of these letters. They are the juiciest most slobbery letters of this kind that I have ever seen.

They might be called for that age "very winning love tidbits with sparkling flashes all over them."

Who would think of addressing his wife in a letter today as "My dear and sweet spouse?" If that would not call forth the rolling pin for action, then I am a pronounced idiot in referring to it.

The governor after a while simmered down his love freaks so that they landed with this in the end, "My good wife." Margaret, his third wife, after awhile touched bottom with her love and merely said "My dear husband," which is very modern.

The old love letters have passed. It is now the telephone that grinds out these emotional potions. But the love of today flashes up better than those old times could show. It took a great deal in those ancient days to keep it warm.

A. H. HYDE

Curley Critics Are Called to Account

Editor Boston American:

What a wonderful satisfaction it is to have a man who is all man governing a city's affairs such as Boston in such a clean, open and honest method. In times past and particularly during the last campaign and election in this city we were obliged to hear and read all kinds of disparaging stories as to the candidacy of the present mayor, His Honor James M. Curley.

What have these critics to say now after having six months' administration of the city's affairs by one who was shot at by many persons who had no knowledge of what Curley could and would do. There are not any weak points in his service and he has carried out more good, honest improvements and all in the open than any mayor of the city for many years.

Results show and that is what we are getting. No real estate franeups will get by him, and his working force in the city must give what their position calls for or out they go. Stand back of him and play fair. We are the ones who benefit by it.

Says Injustice Done to Savin Hill District

Editor Boston American:

In behalf of the residents and citizens of the Savin Hill section I desire to state that there has been an injustice done to the citizens of this section. The committee representing the tercentenary celebration of Dorchester has seen fit to leave the Savin Hill section out in the cold.

The historic landmarks are to be found at Savin Hill. It was here that the settlers came over on the Mary and John and landed in Savin Hill. If the Dorchester day celebration means anything in the way of historic events the Savin Hill section of Dorchester should have been considered as much so as any other section of Dorchester.

I have always had interest in the welfare of this district, and anything that was ever given I had to fight until I got what I wanted for the district. I am sorry that I am not in a position where I could fight and demand that the Savin Hill section be considered in a part of the celebration. It seems that someone has laid down on the job and not shown any interest in this section of Dorchester. Thank you for any interest you may take in this matter.

Finds Sea Gulls Are Best Weather Prophets

Editor Boston American:

I have been so much taken in lately by the printed weather reports in the newspapers that I am going back to depend for information upon the sea gulls around T Wharf or in Boston Harbor.

Believe me, they are the best weather vanes or prophets in Boston. They always head into the wind when the wind is resting. You can guess pretty close to what the weather is going to be by looking at these scavengers of the harbor. I am not going to give away all their secrets, as I have no reason to humiliate the weather department. It would pay to have an Old Salt watch these birds daily for information about the coming of storms. Then spring what they know about it before the public. The public would be so greatly indebted to them that you'd see hundreds of grateful people going down to the wharf to give these birds a welcomed repast. Old Capt. Jorgensen of the Nantucket Light Ship got accurate information from gulls about the weather and the government published his book.

Suspect "Identified" as N. Y. Girl Kidnaper

New York, June 10 (AP)—A brother of 10-year-old Grace Budd, kidnaped two years ago today tentatively identified Charles Howard, 49, brought back from Florida on a grand larceny charge, as his kidnaper. Edward Budd, 19, picked Howard out of a lineup of prisoners.

The girl was taken from home by a man who said he was Frank Howard, a farmer of Farmingdale, N. J. He was a casual acquaintance of the Budd family.

A nation-wide search recently was concentrated in New Hampshire after Mrs. Budd received a letter apparently from her daughter, with a New Hampshire postmark.

Southern Cross Tests It's Radio

Dublin, June 10 (AP)—Wireless tests including the sending of various calls today were made at Baldonnel Airdrome between the Southern Cross and another plane in preparation for Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith's proposed transAtlantic flight.

The Southern Cross remained in the hangar while a Free State plane tumbled about in the air for one hour, three miles away. The messages were received and sent by J. W. Stannage, radio expert of the Southern Cross. Stannage was enthusiastic about the results.

The flyers said they were anxious to have ships keep in touch with them and messages regarding the weather particularly would be appreciated. Capt. Kingsford-Smith said he hoped to be off by Friday.

BANK CLOSING HITS MILL WORKERS

Manchester, N. H., June .0— Working people and their families form the majority of the 20,000 depositors hit by the closing of the Merrimack River Savings Bank, it was learned today.

The bank, New Hampshire's fifth largest savings institution, and one of the oldest in this part of the country, was closed by order of the Hillsborough County Superior Court by request of Bank Commissioner Arthur E. Dole. The bank's deposits amount to $11,138,147.81, included in which are $36,000 of municipal funds, and $5000 of high school funds.

State officials learned last night that approximately $4,000,000 of the institution's assets are "frozen" in Western real estate, including Colorado irrigated lands.

In an official statement issued to the thousands of depositors who found the doors of the old institution closed, Arthur H. Hale, treasurer, expressed confidence that the lose to the depositors will be small.

PLANE WHEELS SCRAPED TREE IN FLIGHT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Tree tops scraping the wheels wing tips going out of sight in fog, the gasoline supply in its last 10 minutes and hopelessly lost. Such was the experience of Jack Kelley, whose whereabouts kept airport officials and Coast Guardsmen on edge for almost 24 hours.

Kelley left Frederick Lothrop Ames, private airport in North Easton shortly after noon Sunday, and dropped completely out of sight.

"I took off from Ames field at 12:30," said Kelley today, "with the weather seemingly fair enough for the short hop to Newport. Ames and I estimated that the ceiling would vary between 150 and 500 feet, but that I could get through.

FOG SETS IN

"Nearly seven minutes out of North Easton, the fog sat right on the ground. Previous to this occurrence I could see about a mile and a half. Not wishing to prowl through the soup, I turned back, only to find the thick, blinding wall of mist on the ground there, too. The tree tops were brushing the undercarriage, and things didn't look so hot.

"Flying in that kind of stuff over country one isn't familiar with isn't conducive to long life, so I pulled the nose up and went up through.

"At 500 feet no holes showed to the ground, so I went up to 800 or 1000, but still the solid blanket of white spread over the ground. An hour was spent thus circling around, trying to find some space to dive through, and not quite daring to take the chance of stumbling blindly down through it.

"By this time my gas supply was beginning to worry me. I estimated that I had about another 20 minutes of gas left, and with desperation driving me, I hunted all the more for that always elusive hole.

HELP ARRIVES

"With the, last drops of fuel going into the carburetor, and as I was reaching for the switch to shut it off, and go down through to what no one knows, the long snout of an American Eagle came up through the tops of the clouds. The pilot of the ship flew up alongside and waved, pointed down, and then pointed to himself.

"I was sure he meant to follow him, and believe me, I did that thing. Down we went, to find a 100-foot ceiling awaiting me, and the Eagle Rock Airport in Tiverton right underneath.

"Herbert Cavaca, who flies from that field, was the boy who probably saved me from a nasty crack-up, and possible injury or worse, and I'll never forget that boy.

Portes Gil added that Morones, who was forced into exile after Gen. Obregon's death, was merely trying to stir up trouble.

THE OLD GARRISON HOUSE, BEDFORD

EVERY OUTLYING settlement usually possessed one or more "garrison houses" in colonial days. These houses were frequently surrounded by palisades and equipped with loopholes on every side. In plantations of any extent, at least one of these houses was large enough to accommodate soldiers for the protection of the families who dwelt near by.

The Indian war whoop was a familiar note to the early settlers, dreaded as much as starvation and other hardships. The General Court recognized the necessity of being prepared, for in 1724 an act allowed the men who were "impressed" two shillings per day for the time spent in service and a bounty was placed upon every scalp brought in, with other inducements.

WHITE MEN LEARN

Many forays took place in which the white men suffered harshly, such as poisoning from unfamiliar foods of the wilderness, inadequate protection against the elements and wounds inflicted by the Indians. They learned, however, a new mode of warfare which preserved them remarkably in their fight for independence later.

The Indian style of attack from behind trees and rocks proved too much for the trained British troops in the Revolution.

Within the present boundaries of Bedford, which includes a part of Billerica and Concord of earlier days, there were four "garrison houses." Even women helped in the garrisons, especially during the war with King Philip in 1675.

GIRL SAVES DAY

Tradition tells us how the young maiden of the household was in this garrison house with just one guard on duty. They were on watch for signs of trouble when the girl pointed to a stump behind which she thought she saw something move. The guard disagreed, thinking it the result of an overwrought imagination, so the girl helped herself to his musket.

She aimed, and so accurate was her shot, that the lurking Indian rolled away from behind the stump, dead. This old garrison house, remaining in Bedford, has been assigned the date 1686. It is now a peaceful spot, where flowers bloom.

Nearly three centuries of civilization have passed over the brown shingled structure, which stands close by the road marked Route No. 4, along which automobiles travel swiftly in and out of the old town of Bedford.

$40,000 GIFT TO B. C.

At an alumni association dinner at Boston College yesterday, the Rev. James H. Dolan, S. J., announced a donation of $40,000 by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. O'Malley for post-graduate research work abroad or in some other American college. The B. C. president also announced other gifts.

The phenomenal growth of the college, which has incerased over 100 per cent during the last 10 years in the number of students admitted, was responsible for the assurance from the reverend president that the standard was growing as well as the number of students.

This was shown, he pointed out, in the admission of B. C. graduates to the professional schools at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Williams and other colleges which had formerly required an examination for entrance.

Father Dolan closed his remarks with a report on the law department opened for the first time last September. There had been over 600 applicants, he stated, out of whom 102 were selected.

The Rev. J. Walter Lambert, '05, was toastmaster. The speakers included: Charles A. Birmingham, '10, the well-known referee of college football; Louis White, '10, John Burns, '21, who is a professor at the Harvard law school, and Edward A. McLaughlin who was elected the new president of the Alumni Association.

Why You Should Never Cut a Corn

If you are troubled with corns or callouses, do not run the risk of blood poison by paring them. Statistics show that many deaths have occurred from this seemingly innocent practice of paring corns.

Simply go to your druggists and get a few cents' worth of Ice-Mint, rub a little on any painful corn or callous. Immediately the pain will disappear and in a short time the corn or callous will loosen and lift off easily with the fingers—root and all—leaving the surrounding skin in a healthy normal condition.

This, together with the fact that Ice-Mint overcomes such affections as sore, tired, aching, puffed or burning feet and makes them cool, easy and comfortable, is probably responsible for the hearty endorsement given it by druggists.

To rid one's feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes or painful callouses in such a pleasant and safe way, makes it seem the height of folly for anyone to pare a corn and people are warned to stop it.

Lone Democrat to Run in Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., June 10 (AP)—Expiration of the qualifying period today brought an announcement from Memphis that Edward Hull Crump, long a dominating figure in state political circles, would be the lone candidate for the Democratic nomination to represent the 10th district in Congress.

Representative Hubert Fisher, veteran of 14 years' service, will retire next March 4. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

HELD IN FRAUD OF WOMEN

Acting on complaints from women in Ontario, Can., who claimed to have sent $2 each to a concern here which had advertised that they would show them how to make $25 to $40 a week in their spare time at home, police inspectors yesterday arrested John A. Gillies, 23, of 29 Inman st., Cambridge, proprietor of the Acme Sales Service Co. of 40 Court st.

Gillies was booked at police headquarters on a charge of doing business under a name other than his own and not being registered. Last night police called local postal inspectors into the case.

NEWS, VIEWS AND GOSSIP OF SOCIETY IN AND ABOUT GREATER BOSTON

Race Season to Attract Leaders

Arlington Park Track Will Be Mecca for Hundreds Next Month

SOCIETY'S BILLION DOLLAR playground of the middle West, Arlington Park race track, will re-open for another spectacular season on June 30. The meet will close August 2 after a months of racing in which society and the finest in horses will meet for the "sport of kings." Seldom has such a list of notable and wealthy women been gathered as box-holders, prospective guests, or entrants of stables as for this meet. Arlington track is an hour's ride by train from Chicago.

REIGH COUNT HAS BEEN withdrawn from the racing lists, but the stables of Mrs. John D. Hertz will be well represented. Charles A. McCulloch continues as chairman of the board, and Otto Lehmann as president of the American National Jockey Club operating the track. Laurence Hearne Amour, scion of a long line of American aristocrats, is this year's president of the Post and Paddock Club, the exclusive organization with a national membership that is part of the Arlington course. Last year's president was Paul Gardner. Mr. Gardner has since married Mrs. Hope Norman Bacon of New York.

MRS. FREDERICK McLAUGHLIN, who as Irene Castle was one of the favorites of an admiring public, is frequently seen at the track, as is Mrs. Robert R. McCormack, Mrs. W. R. Grow, Jr., Mrs. C. A. McCulloch, Mrs. Alfred Ettleson, Mrs. John D. Cady, Mrs. John D. Black, Mrs. Roy D. Keehn, Mrs. Harold Foreman, Mrs. Wolcott Blair and other women famed for their style and savoir-faire.

Popular Engaged Couple

MISS CAROLINE READ and her fiance, Francis Appleton Harding. Miss Read was in charge of the pourers at Miss Harriette Blake's debut at the Dedham Polo and Country Club last Friday. Mr. Harding will be one of the hosts at the popular Beck Hall spread, June 16, before Harvard Class Day.

Famous Stables Will Be Represented in Long List of Entries

AMONG THE FAMOUS owners of stables represented at Arlington will be those of Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, daughter of the great statesman, John Hay and one of the owners of Belmont Park racing course; Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman, wife of the president of the Chatham Phoenix Bank of New York city, and one of the owners of the Congress Hotel, Chicago; Mrs. Harry C. Phipps, a sister of Mrs. Ogden Mills; Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, who, several years ago divorced William K. Vanderbilt; Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Charles Amory; and Mrs. R. Penn Smith, a daughter of the late E. H. Harriman. Mrs. Samuel D. Riddle, Mrs. Walter Jeffords and Mrs. William Zeigler will also have entries.

I PICK UP HERE AND THERE the impression that because of the very long list of debutantes this season more than for many years, the coveted invitations will be to very small and intimate house affairs, in fact, giving large balls will not be chic at all this winter. This also will mean that membership in the two most desired clubs, Junior League and Vincent Club, will be more eagerly sought than ever. It is rumored that the list of members in the Junior League will not be published.

Miss Louise Farley Makes Bow at Tea on Needham Estate

MR. AND MRS. JOHN WELLS FARLEY presented their daughter, Miss Louise, one of the debutantes of the 1930-31 season, at a tea given Sunday afternoon at their Needham estate on South st. The pourers were the Misses Barbara Bremer, Mabel Bradley, Alice L. Haughton, Isobel Potter, Anne Warren and Frances Gardiner.

MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER, is entertaining her cousin, Mrs. Ava Renaclare, at her home in Hamilton. Mrs. Philip O. Coffin (Alys v. L. Meyer), and her three children, Alicia Rodgers, Virginia and Master Christopher, will arrive this weekend. Madame Brambilla (Julia v. L. Meyer), of Rome, is visiting in France and will join her mother on the North Shore later in the season.

THE DAILY HUBBUB

By ANTHONY SKELDING

DOGTOWN

Dogtown Common, a deserted village, lies on high plateau overlooking Gloucester Harbor. The scene of this once thrifty community is slightly weird . . . there are some 20 or 40 cellars and door stones, reminders of the old houses which stood there a hundred years ago. The once busy Main st. is overgrown with stub cedars and wild hedges. An uncany silence prevails.

Legends and myths abound concerning this ruined town. Two hundred years ago it was settled by hardy pioneers, who received land grants from the Colonial Government. Farming and sheep raising flourished. Came the fishing industry—which was more profitable.

From then on the sea attracted the majority of the industrious inhabitants. The decline of Dogtown was rapid. A few of the delapidated cottages remained standing and occupied until about 50 years ago . . . even a gypsy like descendants who lived by all sorts of extra-legal but colorful vocations. Fortune-telling and begging were leading occupations. There was an admixture of Negro blood among these last residents of Dogtown . . . infused by escaped slaves from Gloucester ships.

Sammy Maskey, one of the last survivers of Dogtown wore skirts over his overalls and went about "doin' women's chores." He also did "nussin" and embroidering. On Sundays when picnickers visited the village he helped out in fortune telling. He was evidently a person of versatile talents.

Some of the old inhabitants of Rockport can well remember Sammy with his shawl and long apron over his best Sunday pants. For an extra fee he would perform nymph dances on the back verandas of his mother's delapidated shack. However, Sammy did not carry on this whoopee all his life. For it is recorded that he finally married and settled down . . . one of his descendents went into the wood and coal business.

The queen of the witches was Tammy Younger, of whom it is said that "she could stand in her doorway and bewitch a load of wood so that it would not stay in the cart unless the driver gave her toll." The business must have been pretty good because Tammy was listed as one of the largest land holders in the village.

BLACK NEIL FINSON

The last inhabitant of Dogtown was a Negro, Neil Finson. He was a man of giant proportions, and lived in roustabout fashion on whatever he could find to do. This character is responsible for the present-day myth that gold is buried somewhere in the abandoned cellars of Dogtown. Old Neil spent most of his leisure time looking for it. He even sold shares on the prospect of finding the treasure. Searchers have raked over the ruins for the past 50 years.

The scattered stones can still be seen. Of such enduring stuff is myth made . . . . . the legends of these village lives.

Lindberghs May Visit Connecticut

Old Lyme, Ct., June 10 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may have a place of call on the Connecticut River shore this summer. Mrs. E. K. Dillingham of Texas, a cousin of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, has leased one of three houses on the J. E. Brown estate in town which is close by the river. Mrs. Dillingham desired a place which had ample room for a landing field.

Holiday Tips Are Given Parents

One-Day Tours in and About Boston Listed by Home Information Center

By NANCY BREWSTER

Where to take the children when school is over is suggested today by Mrs. Louise D. Skilton, director of the Boston Home Information Center, as a help to wondering mothers and anxious guardians.

Inspired by a list offered by a member of the Melrose Women's Club, Mrs. Skilton recalls sightseeing spots in the Hub or in proximity to the city where boys and girls might be taken and not only derive endless pleasure but where they will be served education and history in willing doses.

Don't combine a shopping trip with an outing for the children.

In fairness to the project and to the children, Mrs. Skilton points out, the trip should be a short one and the children's own; there should not be the desire to see too much in one day; and the trip should be co-related to school work, outside reading, or some activity in which the children are already engaged.

"First among the educational institutions which will interest and delight most children is the Children's Museum in Jamaica Plain. With the Children's Museum as an introduction to plant, animal and mineral life, the children are ready for visits to the Natural History Museum at Boylston and Berkeley six, and the Agassiz Museum in Oxford st., Cambridge. Then there are two great out-of-door museums, Franklin Park and the Arnold Arboretum.

"If we were to consider all the principal educational institutions, we should of course have to mention the Museum of Fine Arts, Mrs. Jack Gardner's Fenway Court, schools and colleges.

"Then, too, Faneuil Hall, the Old State House, the Old South Church, King's Chapel, Charlestown's Bunker Hill and the Navy Yard offer endless sources of joy for children. Another trip combining history with modern interests is to South Boston to Marine Park, Castle Island and Fort Independence and the Aquarium."

Clubs Offer Women Four Big Advantages, Official Organ Says

Escape from the daily grind is but one of the four things offered by the woman's club to its privileged members, an unassuming paragraph tucked away in a corner of the General Federation News, official organ of the two and a half million clubwomen in the country, announces. The remaining three things are "the democratic spirit, a specific work to do and common interests."

Clubwomen seeking an "object" or purpose for newly organized groups that might be printed boldly on the letterhead, the News Writer comes to these parts especially to attend a meeting of the alumnas association of Wellesley College as one of the speakers. She was graduated from Wellesley with the class of 1886.

Mrs. Thomas Winter to Tell Clubwomen of Movies' Progress

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, the clubwoman's moving picture ambassador in Hollywood, is coming to Boston next week and on June 18 will be the guest of honor of the executive board of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, those members who did not go to the Denver Biennial.

At first vice president of the Federation and in the absence of Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, president, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., will do the official honors in welcoming Mrs. Winters. An informal luncheon with about 35 Bay State clubwomen in attendance, will be given her at the Young Women's Christian Association building, Clarendon st., next Wednesday at 1 p. m. and Mrs. Winter will tell of the progress of the pictures since the clubwoman's invasion. This part of the program will be sponsored by the community service department of which Mrs. Fred B. Cross is chairman.

Mrs. John H. Kimball, Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell, and Mrs. Charles G. Wetherbee are a few of the official family who will be on hand for the occasion. Mrs. Winter comes to these parts especially to attend a meeting of the alumnas association of Wellesley College as one of the speakers. She was graduated from Wellesley with the class of 1886.

Women's Republican Club Honors Miss Margaret McGill

Forty members prominent in the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts tendered an honor luncheon to Miss Margaret McGill, recently elected chairman of the Middlesex County division of the club yesterday. Mrs. Julius Andrews of the governor's council, one of the vice-presidents of the club, arranged the affair.

Miss McGill was doubly honored since she leaves very shortly for an extended tour of Europe with special emphasis on Russian observations. Not since 1918, when she was a Y. W. C. A. worker during the war, has she been overseas.

Those who attended the luncheon included Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, honorary president of the Women's Republican Club; Katherine V. Parker, newly elected president; Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, retired president; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. H. Addington Bruce, Mrs. Frederick E. Judd, new political director; Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union; Mrs. Donald M. Blair, treasurer; Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, and Mrs. Joseph H. Belding, Norfolk County chairman.

Social Workers Urged to Aid Uplift in Mill Towns

The community has failed to erect necessary safeguards about adolescent children, said Dr. Ellen G. Potter at a luncheon conference on illegitimacy held today in connection with the national conference of social work.

Dr. Potter, who is a director of medicine, department of institutions and agencies of New Jersey, reported on a study recently made in that State of problems connected with the care of infants born in correctional institutions.

She stressed the fact that in most cases the history of the mother showed bad home conditions. Only 79 per cent of the girls were of normal mentality.

Dr. Potter recommended further protection for girls of this type and their early segregation for institutional care.

A challenge to social workers to see that the textile industry in the South should serve as a stepping stone to a better economic and social life, as it has in New England, was made by Harriet L. Herring of the University of North Carolina.

NEED EDUCATION.

The present serious and well-planned effort to organize the Southern textile workers was pictured as complicated by the efforts of rival organizations, by the economic difficulties of the industry, the conservatism of the Southern workers, the opposition of the owners and the public.

"The owners and the public need education in the rights of the workers," she said, "and the workers need education in the new responsibility that comes as they gain power. One is in danger of being driven into the ranks of the radicals by a certain type of owner who believes that the ownership of a mill invests him with the divine right to run it as he will."

On the other hand she pointed out the danger of being driven into the ranks of the reactionaries by a certain type of organizer and zealot who deals in untruth and deals out false hopes.

MUST RAISE WAGES

Speaking before the division of industrial and economic problems, Henry P. Kendall of Boston took for his topic "Problems of the Southern Textile Industry."

Bright Outlook for Fur Trimmed Suits

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 10.

BRIGHTER if not better suits are predicted for next season for nearly every collection, it is believed, will include suits of rich colorings heavily trimmed with light furs, such as gray or beige fox. It was thought that elaborate, fur-trimmed suits would repeat their success of last season.

At this time of writing it is far more pleasant to describe bathing suits and ensembles and so create the illusion of surf-capped waves beating against a golden strand. Judging from the tremendous number of original bathing ensembles we have already seen in our visits to various designers, there should be little fear of duplication on the beach, in the way of bathing attire, except that, of course, every costume from hat to shoes will be an ensemble affair.

Typical of the mode is the Mary Nowitsky model sketched for this page. It consists of a white wool jersey suit over which is worn short red flannel trousers ending well above the knee and trimmed with white flannel piping. A knee-length coat combines red and white flannel and these same two fabrics make the beret and large bag which is rubberized inside. The shoes are of red and white linen.

The suit has just been added to Miranda's mid-season collection. It is of heavy toile de laine in a soft rust shade, with the wide, flaring collar bordered with beige fox. The lower half of the sleeves are finely tucked and bloused midway between wrist and elbow. The belt, too, is trimmed with fine tucking.

4 College Girls to Be Inoculated With Cold Germs

Baltimore, June 10 (AP)—As a group of scientists who for more than two years have sought the cause and cure of the common cold prepared to test cultures of the organism which an independent investigator said he had found to cause the malady, four girls graduates of Goucher Colleges are being used as objects of experiment, it was learned today.

The four agreed to let Dr. J. A. Doull and his associates inoculate them with cold organism cultures and various serums for two weeks.

BRITISH SHELL, BOMB INDIANS

Peshawar, India, June 10 (AP)—The troops of the Haji of Turangzai near Shakdar have been bombed intermittently by aircraft and shelled by artillery during the last few days.

The Utmankhel hide-out north of Tangi has been similarly treated by a British aircraft.

Both are inactive at present.

Previous advices from the rocky region beyond the northwest frontier had been received stating that thousands of Afridis had been routed out of their stronghold by the dropping of 5000 bombs into their lairs.

Wife Wants Slice of Husband's Income From Bridge

White Plains, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—A lawyer told Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today about a bridge game in which he said Robert S. Landstreet participated for "three solid days" and made enough to support him for a year.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Landstreet of New Rochelle is suing Landstreet for separation.

Counsel for Landstreet held he should not be made to pay more than one-third of his $3500 salary for alimony. Mrs. Landstreet's lawyer said the husband's income from bridge ought to be counted.

News of the Port of Boston -:- By Carl Morrison

In quoting the opinion of some seafaring people that the "serpent" recently reported off Georges Banks was merely an illusion created by a school of porpoise in single file formation, we started a lively controversy.

A dozen fishing captains and other harbor workers quoted "proof" of the existence of such a serpent. An employe of the Bay State Fishing Co. said:

"That description of a serpent, 150 feet long with a big head like a horse, exactly fits the description of a serpent I saw a year or so ago at the equator."

Another sailor quoted two sources. He told how the late Capt. Samuel Pray of the American-Hawaiian had made a signed statement of having been such a serpent. The other source was an admiral of the U. S. Navy, whose sworn declaration of evidence of a serpent started an official investigation which failed to disprove the admiral's claim—although nothing was proven.

How about it?

Today's Who's Who

The subject of today's "Who's Who in the Harbor" is Henry R. Wightman, manager of the inward freight department of John G. Hall & Co.

Rochereh Photo
H. R. Wightman

Henry is generally recognized as the hardest working man in the harbor and its champion "hard luck" executive. Whenever he wants to go away for a holiday or for a week-end, several ships are certain to arrive in port and demand his attentions. He handles some 165 foreign ships during the year, and has the reputation of always being on the job.

This tireless young man has six hobbies. He goes in for baseball, swimming, dancing, night automobiling, and takes an active interest in the Charlestown K. of C. and the Foreign Commerce Club. He is cheer leader for the F. C. C. and no meeting is complete without him. His fondest hope is to win a prize in a Marathon dance contest. He holds the harbor record for long-distance night motoring.

Butch Suspects Morgan of Informing on the Gang and Tries to Kill Him

MORGAN COULD hear Butch's behemoth voice urging the men on. The place reeked and roared with the dead and dying, while powder smoke soon closed in like a fog over all.

CHAPTER 19

"Don't kill me!" Kent slobbered. "For God's sake, lay off. I swear I didn't want to squeal. They forced me. They told me they'd let me go—free—if I did. I couldn't stand it here—I was going crazy! I didn't mean to sell them out. Don't tell Butch. I didn't plant that knife on you . . . I didn't. . . ."

"You'd beg an' lie at the gates o' Judgment. I'd hate to waste a good bullet on you," sneered Morgan.

"Don't kill me! Don't, please! I didn't mean it! Oh, God, don't hurt me—Anne!—Anne! Save me! Save me! Save me!"

Face Went Blue
Morgan Flared Up

"Keep her name out of it—damn you!—or I'll shoot you with her name on your purple lips."

Then Morgan dropped his arms helplessly. He remembered his promise to Anne. Kent, seeing him thus and realizing, with the last cunning of a man on the threshold of death, his chance, slipped past Morgan and ran out the door. Morgan did not try to stop him or follow him. "Anne"—in this tragic phantasmagoria, this human idiocy of love and blood and revenge and self-preservation and slaughter and all society against a handful of anti-socials—her name! her pure, white, forgiving, faithful Christian name!

The tears popped from his eyes. Then he laughed. It was all so dramatic, all so anti-climactic—all so sublime, all so absurd!

"Haul out another guard!"

Through the bedlam of shots, yells and splintering of glass, Morgan heard Butch's behemoth voice. The place reeked and roared with dead and dying. Morgan could hardly see for the smoke. It choked him, but he dared not cough.

"The door's locked!" Morgan heard Joe call back.

"Curtains—I guess we're cleaned up. Everybody's breezed. I wanted to get Morgan myself, though."

"Butch! Butch!" Joe was calling.

"Yeah?"

"Morgan!"

With a delirious whoop he ran around to the steps. Morgan heard them nearing the cell. When they were a brief distance away he said, and he meant business:

"Stay where you are, Butch!"

"I'll get you now—you—"

"Listen, Butch, you're nuts—I didn't turn you up.—I can't powwow with you now—if you come a step further I'll plug you—an' you know me."

Joe raised his gun and fired. The bullet struck the corner of the cell door, bounced like a handball and fell at Morgan's feet. Morgan poked his hand out, took a no-time aim, exposing his face, and fired. The bullet hit Joe in the arm and his gun dropped.

"I'm hit, Butch! He done it—"

Butch only growled. Both darted into the next cell to the one where Morgan was entrenched. Meantime, the guards outside, evidently emboldened by the lack of return of their fire, had crept up to the cellhouse and had tossed tear gas bombs. The fumes were beginning to mount in horizontal streaks.

Morgan stood his post at the door. Under the stress of the excitement he had reverted to type. He was now the gangster on the defensive—abysmally hard, fearless, heartless. He called to Joe, who was moaning:

"I warned you fair, Joe. I didn't rat on your gang—and I'm not goin' to take the slap for nothin'. You ain't after no sucker—lay off or I'll bump you off."

Joe Fired
Bullet Struck Wall

"You squealin' swine," Butch shouted. "If you stick your dome out o' that there cell door, I'll pot a slug between your cheatin' lamps."

But Pop Riker wouldn't be so easily quieted. He called:

"Butch, do you hear me? This is Pop Riker. I'm in the coffin with Morgan. You're wrong, Butch—Morgan didn't buzz on you. I swear it—he never rattled no tin cup—"

"You're a liar!" roared Butch in maudlin rage. "Even the screws is backstoppin' the rat. Come on, Joe—I'm going in and get both of 'em—you got the guts to be in on the play?"

Morgan heard the feet of the two men scraping along the concrete floor. He jabbed out his rod and fired, "by ear." The tear gas was floating into the cells. Morgan felt his eyes burn. He heard Joe's distorted voice:

"Wait! My eyes, Butch. They got me—my eyes!"

"Gas," growled Butch. "I suck it for dessert."

CRASH DOOR OF SPEAKEASY

In the first raid since Capt Richard Fitzgerald took command of Division 2 police today crashed the doors of an alleged speakeasy on the second floor of 294 State st and seized a quantity of liquor and arrested two men.

The prisoners, John Walsh, 58, of Mystic st., Charlestown, and Fred Lavery, 52, of Hanover st., were questioned by Capt Fitzgerald at roll call and warned that no more liquor selling would be tolerated on the division.

Carrying a warrant and armed withe sledges and axes, Sergt Michael Carr and Officers Burke Connors and Adair broke down the door and forced their way into the place.

They arrested Walsh and Lavery for alleged keeping and exposing liquor for sale, but did not molest a number of men said to have been customers. The raiders seized 12 gallons of alcohol, half a gallon of whiskey and a quantity of bottles, glasses, funnels, kegs and other paraphernalia, police reported.

AUTOIST GETS JAIL TERM

Arraigned on three charges of violation of the automobile laws before Judge E. G. Davis in Malden today, Dudley K Marshall, 31 year-old salesman, of South Attleboro, threw himself on the mercy of the court after a plea of guilty.

He was sentenced to two months on a drunken driving charge, two months on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident without making his identity known, and ten days on a charge of driving after his license had been revoked.

Marshall, who is known to the police of other Massachusetts cities and has served time, was arrested after a chase last week in Malden. He was involved in an accident in which William L. Adams, 60, of Malden, was injured.

Sought for six months by police for the larceny of an automobile in Wakefield last November, Howard A. Muise, 19, of Vernon st. Wakefield, returned early today and was captured by three police officers as he was about to leap from a second story window.

Sergt John G Gates and Patrolmen James F Harnett and Gervase Stanley who had received a tip that Muise was in town, made the arrest.

STATE WARS ON ILLEGAL SIGNS

To rid the state of illegal and "sniper" signs, the public works department has established a sign patrol.

The patrol at present consists of one truck and five men and is under the supervision of the Outdoor Advertising division recently established by the department, under control of James E. Dwyer.

Frank E. Lyman, chairman of the public works department, said the establishment of the sign patrol is nothing revolutionary by the result of two year's planning in relation to sign conditions in the state.

"It is the first step in an aggressive program to rid the State of these sniper signs," he said. "Our aim is to clean up the open highways of the State.

"The patrol will be enlarged as the necessity arises. Members of the patrol will cover all the numbered highways, removing all illegal posters and signs. It will be some time before the open highways are entirely cleaned out, but we hope that the rigid enforcement of the nuisance section of the law will ultimately make it possible."

HUB SOCIETY MATRONS DIVIDED ON COCKTAIL CONTROVERSY

MANY UPHOLD PROPOSAL TO BAN DRINK

Boston society matrons today stood divided on the question of supporting or ignoring the proposal to banish cocktails and other alcoholic drinks from social functions held in the Greater Boston area.

This was revealed when it became known that while many have endorsed the proposed plan of Mrs. George Holt Strawbridge of Philadelphia, who sent a circular letter to society matrons in all Eastern cities, seeking their views on her idea, many of the replies were stern, in some cases stinging, refusals to approve any such proposal. Another group of matrons are said to be withholding their replies until they see how the proposal has been received.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

A "tremendous improvement" among socially prominent people in the Back Bay and Greater Boston in recent months was reported by Mrs. William H. Brown of Beacon st. and Cohasset. She cited the fact that one exclusive club has become "bone dry," and another closely approximates that condition.

As president of the Law Enforcement League of Massachusetts, Mrs. Brown has enlisted the allegiance of several thousand women, including about 1000 wealthy, prominent women of Boston and other communities, in a campaign to promote the observance and enforcement of the law.

"I am very much in favor of Mrs. Strawbridge's movement to abolish liquor drinking among persons of social prominence," said Mrs. Brown.

"The movement is meeting with widespread approval even among persons who are opposed to prohibition, but who have responded to President Hoover's appeal for full respect to the law.

FAILURE PREDICTED

Mrs. William Lowell Putnam of Boston and Manchester predicted failure for the campaign of social drinking reform.

"I received a letter from Mrs. Strawbridge recently asking me to join the movement," said Mrs. Putnam. "I wrote her in reply that such an undertaking would not stand the ghost of a chance of success here in Massachusetts.

"Massachusetts women are determined to repeal the eighteenth amendment, a that is the only thing to do with a law which cannot obtain general respect."

Mrs. Putnam is a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts branch of the women's organization for national prohibition reform.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston, national president of the Women's Law Enforcement League, refused to discuss the proposal. "The work which Mrs. Strawbridge is doing

Musicians of Nation Gather Here

MUSICIANS, BOTH MEN and women from many cities of the land and Canada, are at the Copley-Plaza convention of the American Federation of Music. Joseph N. Weber is the national president. He is seen here with G. B. Henderson, of Canada, and Thomas H. Finnegan, head of Boston's branch of the federation.

"LIVE MUSIC" VICTORY SEEN

Delegates to the American Federation of Musicians, in convention at the Copley-Plaza will be told by Joseph N. Weber, president, that formation of the Music Defense League to oppose substitution of canned music for live music in theatres has greatly strengthened the federation's industrial position.

"The menace to our art, contained in the exploitation of sound pictures, remains a very grave one," said Weber today, "but we have tangible evidence that the tide is beginning to turn in our favor. Promoters of mechanical music have made a vigorous attempt to swallow up the profession completely, which would have a disastrous effect upon the future of music. By presenting a determined front and calling upon all friends of music to join in its defense, we have done much to check this attempt. It remais for protagonists of music to continue the struggle unabated.

"It is likely that the use of mechanical music will become more widespread, but this development may favor the cause of living music—paradoxical though that may sound. One of the great electrical companies is now preparing to market a chesper sound picture device, with a view to making this entertainment available for homes, hotels, clubs, churches, steamships and such places. By this means and by the development of television, some form of theatrical entertainment may soon be ready to hand almost everywhere.

"An official of the electrical company has answered that the theater of the future will have to draw patronage through its atmosphere, and elaborate furnishings, etc., but the greatest contribution to "atmosphere," so-called, that theaters have ever known is real living music. This reasoning seems to us to be sound and whatever may be the future of mechanical music, we believe the future of living music will soon begin to show new growth."

In a number of cities, orchestras are now being restored in theatres, officials of the federation said, and plans are afoot for further restorations next season.

said it is obvious that no small fraction of human effort is devoted to the requirement of a better understanding of the world in which we live and to the increased appreciation and mastery of the material world.

POINTS TO PIONEERS

The speech [illegible] made its first [illegible] appearance in the 12th century, Sir Henry said, and in spite of [illegible] that three of the pioneers were Benjamin Thompson, [illegible] Count Rumford, Joseph Priestley and Vannevar Bush.

He reviewed the careers of these men, bringing out the fact that two of them, Thompson and Bernard, were both educated in the State of Massachusetts, and that Count Rumford was largely instrumental in founding the Royal Institution.

"It is true, of course, that we must work for ourselves," said Sir Henry in conclusion, "institutions have to earn their living and students must come to learn how to earn theirs. As the world is made, it must be so. But also the world is so made that the vision of its wonder, and the delight of mutual service and the happy task of exploring the one to help us in achieving the other, can light our lives for us as the sunshine lights the earth."

WHOLE STREETS OVERLOOKED IN CENSUS

Hundreds of Complaints Received in American Check-Up Campaign

Announcement from Washington, which stated that local census supervisors have been ordered to investigate all oversights in enumerating reported by means of coupons published in the Boston Evening American resulted today in a heavy batch of mail to the Census Editor of this newspaper.

Hundreds of Boston inhabitants have already forwarded coupon complaints and in many cases it was remarked that whole families were overlooked in various wards of the city.

Telephone calls to the Census Editor revealed also that entire streets in Roxbury and Dorchester were not visited by the federal census takers. In addition to these complaints scores of persons have written to the Census Editor stating that they were away from home when the census takers called and were never approached again for enumeration.

Census Director Steuart has ordered a rigid re-check of all such cases reported. He has also ordered a recanvass of all places where clear evidence of any considerable error is presented.

It is for the purpse of obtaining such evidence that the Boston Evening American is daily publishing coupons. If properly filled out and forwarded to the Census Editor they will be turned over to the local supervisors for investigation.

Unofficial returns indicate that the census as enumerated will show Boston to be about 10,000 short of the coveted 800,000-mark.

Officials of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Mayor James M. Curley and many other prominent Boston citizens believe that thousands of inhabitants have been overlooked by the federal census takers.

If you have not been enumerated it is your duty to yourself and to your home city to fill out the coupon published in today's Boston Evening American and forward it at once to the Census Editor.

Every coupon will help toward giving Boston a full count. If the census taker missed you, cut out and mail it TODAY!

Rugg to Address General Court

Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial court has been chosen a senior of the day for the tercentenary observance of the beginning in this Commonwealth of the Great and General court, according to the announcement last night by State Senator Samuel H. Dog Bites Iceman

While delivering ice on Grant ave., Medford, yesterday afternoon, Fred Hamilton of 125 Washington st., Medford, was bitten in the right leg by a dog.

This Is What a Toppling Ice Wagon Did

'CREAM TWINS' BACK HOME

When you start selling ice cream cones enthusiastically in your own street and find yourself unenthusiastically in Shrewsbury, far away, with no roof and no bed in prospect, it's time for seven-year-old twin salesmen to quit.

The twins are Pauline and Sumner, of 481 Norfolk st., Mattapan, and they were aiding an unidentified ice cream cone vendor on his truck when he carried them off, deserting them in Shrewsbury.

They were picked up by Shrewsbury police and put to bed until arrival of their father.

First Vacation in 20 Years for Fire Chief

Fire Chief John T. Nicholls of Malden will begin his first vacation in 20 years, when he sails late this month for Europe for six weeks.

He has been granted four weeks' leave without pay and the other two weeks are his allotted vacation with pay. A special order will go before the city council tonight to provide full pay for the six weeks.

'No More Cone Selling'

BABY CARRIAGE WRECKED in Walden st., North Cambridge, when an ice wagon fell on it after colliding with a taxicab. Lorraine Lydon had almost a miraculous escape from death or serious injury, the durability of her carriage being credited with saving her. Mrs. Lydon suffered injuries to her back and legs and was severely frightened until she learned her baby was safe. With Lorraine here are her brother, John, 4, and sister, Marie, 6.

There must have been wonder in little Lorraine Lydon's tiny mind today at the fervor with which her mother hugged her.

Lorraine had forgotten already the incident of yesterday, but it had not been forgotten by the mother, Mrs. Jennie Lydon, and in their home at 8 Brooks st., Cambridge, she kept the 11-month-old infant almost constantly in her arms, still marveling that she had the privilege.

Lorraine is the baby who, yesterday, was trapped in her carriage under an ice truck that overturned in Walden st., Cambridge. The truck contained a ton and a half of ice and was operated by Gordon Herman of Mansfield st., Everett.

Mrs. Lydon was waiting an opportunity to cross the street when the truck started to swing into Newell st.

And a taxicab crashed into it and knocked it over.

At some places along the shore the fog hung so long that it slowed automobile traffic considerably. This was particularly true of the boulevard between Revere and Lynn.

Fog held all planes on the ground at Boston airport this morning.

The inauguration of service between Boston and Washington by the Eastern Air Express was postponed following reports of bad weather along the entire route and the first two New York trips of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., were cancelled. No ships came through from Springfield and New York.

BUSINESS LEADERS SAY TARIFF BILL WILL RUIN PORT OF BOSTON

HUB BUSINESS HEADS SPLIT ON TARIFF

Many See Port Wiped Out as World Market; "Salvation" to Shoe Manufacturers

Boston business leaders assailed today the tariff bill now pending in the Senate, declaring that the port faces a tremendous loss of revenue, increased unemployment and possible extinction as a world market if the bill is passed.

Shoemen, however, favored the bill, stating that it will aid their business.

Retaliation by other countries was freely predicted by the business leaders.

Mere anticipation of the tariff bill is reported to have caused an alarming decrease in trade. It is claimed that part of this drop is due to business depression, but most of it is traced to resentment of foreign nations against the injury they believe threatens them in the new schedules.

More than 200 threats and protests against the bill have been received from foreign countries, many of them from governmental leaders, others from United States consuls, alarmed at the foreign reaction.

SECOND IN IMPORTS

Boston and New England are especially interested in the satisfactory reconciliation of differences coming up as a result of the measure. This city ranks second only to New York in quantity and value of imports. Annually $277,000,000 worth of goods come in through the port.

The annual export business is considerably less because of the prevailing freight differentials favorable to Norfolk, Baltimore and Philadelphia, although Boston is nearer to European trade centers than any of these cities.

Despite these handicaps in exporting, Boston does an annual business well over $45,000,000, ranking 20th in the United States. With a high tariff wall to keep foreign goods from competing a great falling off in imports and exports is expected.

RESOLUTION EXPECTED

The first definite move by Boston trade representatives against the Smoot-Hawley bill is scheduled for today when the Steamship Freight and Customs Brokers' Association holds its regular meeting and election at the Chamber of Commerce quarters.

While no official word has been received, it is understood that Pr[illegible] Elmer E. Elwell will propose a resolution condemning the bill. Elwell is also president of the Foreign Commerce Club, composed of export and import men.

This group stands to suffer the greatest losses in the event foreign nations take protective steps in the form of reprisals, trade wars and cut-throat competition.

Great Britain, with an avowed program to lower trade barriers, has gained three billions, in foreign trade since the World War.

During the same time, the United States, manifesting a tendency in the opposite direction, has increased its trade only two billions.

That reprisals are bound to come is indicated by the drop in automobile exports since the tariff debate started. European wool merchants hit by the revised schedules, have started what is in effect a boycott of American products.

COMPETE HERE

European merchants are keenly aware of their powers. At the recent Geneva trade conference, 20 nations drew up agreements tending to lower trade barriers, although ready to raise them if the United States forces their hands.

Many well informed business men predict, if reprisal fails, foreign corporations will establish in the United States and compete with American manufacturers.

Sweden, which has a monopoly in the match industry, is contemplating such a move, authorities say, pointing out that if it comes about, American match manufacturers will suffer because of inability to manufacture as cheaply as foreign rivals.

That the unemployment situation will become increasingly acute is predicted by some. It is pointed out that with the raising of high trade barriers, American capital will be forced to go to foreign markets.

MEANS TRADE WAR

Walter E. Doherty, vice-president of the Steamship, Freight and Custom Brokers Association said:

"Almost anyone can surmise or say what will happen if the Smoot-Hawley Bill is passed, but no one really knows. We cannot tell how a thing will react until it is tried.

"But there is no question in my mind and it is the consensus of opinion among many to whom I have spoken, that it will react disastrously, on the face of it, because of the retaliation of other countries, which is bound to come and, in many cases, has come.

LARGE ENTRY IN MODEL REGATTA

Scores of out-of-state contestants who will compete in the Model Yacht Regatta on the Charles river basin, June 29, will arrive in Boston earlier to witness the international model cup race trial on the same water the four days immediately preceding.

Word to that effect has been received by Fred L. Pigeon, East Boston mast builder and secretary of the Boston Model Yacht Club which, with the Community Service, is staging the regatta under auspices of the Boston Evening American.

The cup races to select the United States challenger for the trophy now held by England, and to be sailed for off Gosport, England, in August, will start on June 26, and continue through the 27th and 28th, with a series of all contests to decide the winner. There will be entries from Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Washington, Jacksonville, New York, Brooklyn and Providence.

The regatta on the fourth day will see competition in six classes, four restricted to boys and girls up to the age of 17. These latter are for boats of 18 inches, 24 inches and 36 inches and over. The other two classes open to all competitors are the Somerville schooner and Marblehead sail area.

Two silver trophies donated by the Boston American and a book on model yachts, will be awarded the winners in each class. All entries should be sent to Pigeon, at 131 Coleridge st., East Boston, or to the Community Service of Boston Inc., Model Yacht Association, 739 Boylston st.

BARRY SCORES BEACON HILL 'DARKNESS'

Says Only 50 Homes Were Lighted Up as Part of Tecentenary Fete

Beacon st. residents were sharply criticized last night for their failure to co-operate with the Boston tercentenary committee in illuminating their property along the banks of the Charles river by former Lieutenant Governor Edward P. Barry, vice-chairman of the committee on illumination.

Although the committee sent letters out to 3000 property owners [illegible] agreed to light up [illegible] only 50 houses were [illegible] in recording his disappointment.

"In view of the fact that Technology is spending $100,000 by illuminating its buildings every night until Oct. 15, and Harvard has promised to light up the towers of its buildings along the Charles, the residents of Beacon Hill, Embankment rd., Beacon st. and Bay State rd. have dismally failed to display a spirit of co-operation, with the exception of about 50, some of whom have gone to great expense to light up for the tercentenary," he said.

UNIVERSAL BUYS 'MERRY-GO-ROUND' FOR TALKIE

LOS ANGELES, JUNE 10. Eric von Stroheim has clung tenaciously to the sound rights to "Merry Go Round" with the idea that he himself might one day put it into the talkies. GIVES VIEWS ON PICTURES AND STAGE

New York, June 10.

Brock Pemberton is the latest to offer observations about the state of the stage and related topics. Here are some of his observations:

"A six weeks' trip across the continent and back with a company of 'Strictly Dishonorable,' half of the period spent in Hollywood, city of intermittent blondes and perpetual sunshine, has led me to certain definite conclusions about the theater.

"The road is not dead for plays the public has heard about and has confidence in.

"The legitimate theater has lost some of its patronage to the talkies.

"The cinema was dying when the oxygen of speech revived it. The silent picture was a soporific. It lulled its victims to sleep.

"The talking picture, even in its lowest form, represents a certain amount of brains. When the picture makers gave the screen a voice they at once paid the stage the greatest compliment and ruined their own position. For the talkie is a pallid imitation of the stage and must compete with it on its own terms.

"For the first time in the history of the cinema, a picture can actually lose money. Until the advent of talkies, it was the proud boast of picture producers that no matter how bad their product they couldn't lose. Suddenly they find themselves in show business with public staying away in droves if a picture doesn't hit the fancy.

"The legitimate producer has known that feeling always, but there is a difference between the failure of a $25,000 production and a talkie that is produced at a minimum of a quarter of a million."

Hugh O'Connell is featured in the cast of "Once in a Lifetime" which opened in Atlantic City on May 26. O'Connell has appeared in several Vitaphone Varieties including "The Familiar Face," "The Interview" and "The Head Man."

Montana Town Named After Gary Cooper

Gary Cooper is perhaps the first motion picture star to have a town named after him. Recently the featured player in "The Texan," now playing at the Fenway and Modern, was informed by officials of the Great Northern Railway that the name of Sunnyside, Montana, would be changed to Gary to honor him.

Cooper owns a large ranch near Sunnyside and proposes to make that locality an attraction for visitors by opening the Gary Cooper Guest Ranch there.

Ramon Novarro's "In Gay Madrid," and an excellent bill of Lowe's vaudeville, made up the offering at Loew's Orpheum this week.

Novarro's latest picture is a picturization of the old Spanish classic. He is heard in six new original songs. Dorothy Jordan again plays the leading feminine role, the demure senorita for whom Novarro sings his love. Lottice Howell, erstwhile New York opera singer, is seen in the role of the siren of Madrid. Robert Z. Leonard, director of "The Divorcee," handled the direction.

It was a real homecoming reception that Billy Glason, native Boston son and musical comedy star, received as headliner of the vaudeville portion of the show. The youthful singing comedian got his start on the stage of Loew's Orpheum. A well received novelty was the artistic posing singing and dancing presentation of Harrison and Fisher's "Living Jewelry." John Barton, with Anne Ashley and Beth Clark, carried off the comedy honors of the bill. Joe Lane and Pearl Harper in "Bits of Wit" and Bob and Emilie in "Happy Daze" scored with their turns.

For Real Knockout, Get Friday's Boston American

Thursday is the day, the Yankee Stadium the place, and the heavyweight championship of the world is the stake.

Jack Sharkey of Boston or Max Schmeling of Germany will ascend the throne that has been vacant since the retirement of Gene Tunney two years ago.

The Boston Evening American of Friday will cover every move and phase of the 1930 ring classic with the color and completeness that is characteristic of the Boston Evening American sports pages.

JACK CONWAY, American boxing editor and the country's greatest picker of winners, will lead the array of stars. Jack has been legal advisor to Sharkey through his ring life, and was instrumental in dropping him in this spot.

DAMON RUNYON, who arranged the match for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund, will describe the fireworks in his own brilliant way. He is sport's greatest word painter.

NICK FLATLEY, sporting editor of the Boston Evening American will be at the ringside to describe to you all that goes on, while the title is being decided.

JACK SHARKEY, himself, will tell how he kept the crown in America, or why it went to Germany, as the case may be. This will be the only paper in Boston to carry the fighter's own story.

JAMES J. CORBETT, former heavyweight champion, also will give American readers an expert ringster's slant on proceedings.

There will be Hype Igoe, internationally known fight writer, and Bill Corum to depict the hundred and one intimate and technical details of a great fight like this one.

The boys will give you blow-by-blow accounts of the battle and the low down on the blow or incident that settled the title.

If you miss the fight, don't miss the Boston Evening American.

No matter what happens, it's bound to be a knockout.

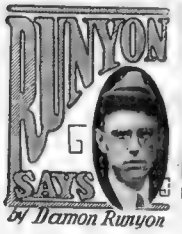
FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1930 FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

Mike Brady Leads in Mass. Open Golf Tilt



By Damon Runyon

NEW YORK, JUNE 10—MR. Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, has been convinced of one thing by the Sharkey-Schmeling fight which is that New York city must either have an arena specially constructed for expositions of the manly art, or big outdoor spectacles must be abandoned in these parts

I am inclined to think that as a result of Mr. Carey's observations the Garden Corporation will have a new open air arena. The Milk Fund show of 1930 is the first big outdoor show even closely approximating a sell-out that Mr. Carey has encountered since taking over the presidency of the corporation and it has taught him the disadvantages of baseball yards for these affairs

In an arena built for boxing, and of sufficient capacity, Sharkey and Schmeling would have drawn well over $1,000,000. I mean such an arena as would insure every client a fair sort of view of the proceedings regardless of location.

Such an arena as the old timber source that the late George Tex Rickard built on Rovle's justly celebrated Thirty Acres in Jersey City

In such an arena, the Sharkey-Schmeling thing would have sold out before you could say John R. Robinson. And it would be a pleasure to sell the tickets to the clients

Mr. Carey can see that the future loss to the Garden Corporation on big fights held in ball yards, just through the absence of clients who would be there if they knew they could get decent seats, may be very large, indeed

Present Seating Plans Unfair to Spectators

OF COURSE, THERE CAN BE no loss to the Garden on the Schmeling-Sharkey thing, as it is for the benefit of the Milk Fund, but the fights that come after this are bound to suffer because of lack of proper housing.

It is an injustice that cannot be avoided under the circumstances that one fellow who pays $25 for a ticket can sit in the first row, and another who pays exactly the same amount, must peer at the proceedings from the 30th row, or worse.

But what are you going to do about it?

As a matter of simple justice to the remote client, the expedient has been tried of pricing the ringside rows at a figure below the front rows, and the clients promptly disdained the cheaper seats, though they will buy them if they are the same price as the front rows

Your client is peculiar in that he thinks the price difference is not so much a matter of justice to him as it is a class distinction of some kind.

Baseball yards were not built for boxing. The manly art went into them on a large scale when it became apparent that the specially constructed arenas introduced by the late George Tex Rickard were too expensive and too risky to life and limb.

But in New York, at least, the owners of the baseball yards have made the rental so high that it would now be economy to build a fistic bowl, especially counting the difference in attendance that the bowl would make

Cup Defenders Ready for Trial Tomorrow

New York, June 10 (INS) Short sails by three America's cup defender candidates today were to wind up preparations for the first race. The Enterprise, Weetamoe and Whirlwind are to take part in the New York Yacht Club race at Glen Cove tomorrow

The old sloops Resolute and Vanadis will not participate. Only the Yankee will be missing.

Leaves $650,000 Estate to Relatives

Los Angeles, Cal., June 10 (INS) —The late Harry Daniel (Curly) Brown, who was a widely known race track promoter and sportsman, left the bulk of his $650,000 estate to relatives, according to the terms of his will on file here today. He died here May 4.

SHARKEY HAS TERRIFIC PUNCH

By JACK CONWAY

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 10—It will be a cool, fighting, determined Jack Sharkey who will clash with Max Schmeling in a 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium New York, on Thursday night.

Jack Conway

Sharkey got his best punch to the world when he [illegible] stepped in and wrecked Johnny Grosso and King Solomon in a workout here. The American champion dropped Grosso to the canvas with a savage left hook to the chin.

Later he knocked Johnny part way through the ropes on two occasions with the same sock. King Solomon was also punched around the ring by the Boston heavyweight.

When Sharkey ended his boxing he scaled 198 pounds. He will box again today and will then take things easy until he enters the ring with Schmeling Thursday night.

Sharkey displayed terrific punching power and also fine boxing in his workout. He used a feint in making an opening for his left hand. The punch that sent Grosso to the canvas didn't travel more than five inches, but every ounce of energy in Sharkey's body was behind the wallop.

Schmeling has been wide open for a left hand attack in his training bouts at Endicott. It is apparent that Sharkey intends to take full advantage of this weakness in the German's defence.

Sharkey has added fishing to his training routine. Following his road work, he hides himself away on the bank of some quiet stream in the company of Al Lacey and goes fishing.

Al Singer Impressed by Sharkey's Showing

[illegible] Singer, New York [illegible] who [illegible] Sammy Mandell for the [illegible] championship, [illegible] action and was much impressed by the showing of the American champion.

It was announced here today that Johnny Buckley, Al Lacey and Tony Palazola will direct affairs in Sharkey's corner.

A week ago there were not as many Schmeling backers as is true today.

Paul Gallico, sports editor of the Daily News, has picked Max to win. Damon Runyon placed a parlay on Gallant Fox and Schmeling.

Doc Almy is stringing along with the German.

Jimmy Dawson of the Times also likes Schmeling to win. Harry Grayson of the Telegram is leading Schmeling's terrific punching power.

Ned Brown of the World says Sharkey is a cinch to win by a knockout inside of six rounds. Ed Geiger of the Chicago American is also picking Sharkey.

Many others hold a similar opinion.

Anyhow, it looks as if it is going to be a whale of a fight.

New York, June 10 (AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom's 10-round bout with Georgie Smith, Newark light-heavyweight, postponed last night because of rain, will be held tonight, weather permitting, at Dexter park.

Sharkey in Fine Shape As He Winds Up Training

By JACK SHARKEY

American Heavyweight Champion

Orangeburg, N. Y. June 10 It will be a happy Jack Sharkey who will wind up his training here today. I have been in training for six weeks and have reached the peak of physical fitness.

The program for my final day of training calls for two rounds of boxing with Johnny Grosso, two more sessions of boxing with King Solomon, two games of bag punching and some shadow boxing.

I have gradually approached the best condition of my ring career. For days before a bout I have [illegible] taken off too much weight and it has been necessary for me to build myself back, to my best fighting form.

When I boxed Young Stribling at Miami, Fla., I scaled 186 pounds a week before the bout. It was necessary for me to park 10 pounds in order for me to enter the ring at my best weight.

The intense heat of Florida always caused the fight to melt off my body and I could not take much exercise as I wanted to.

It has been different training here. Climatic conditions are perfect. I have followed a careful [illegible] ample endurance.

Three Ex-Champions Pick Sharkey to Win

[illegible] Sharkey ought to knock him out, said Jim Jeffries.

"I like Sharkey," was Jack Dempsey's terse statement.

Jess Willard said: "Sharkey ought to win. I think he has a good chance to do so."

[illegible] in the real rough contests of the ring, the [illegible] is not apt to [illegible] partner to [illegible] a crowd.

SCHMELING TO GO BY TRAIN TO NEW YORK

Endicott, N. Y., June 10 (US) - Schmeling bowed to the will of the Madison Square Garden Corporation and agreed to be hauled down to the scene of his battle with Jack Sharkey by train tomorrow afternoon instead of flying down Thursday morning.

A Junkers plane had been placed at Schmeling's disposal and he was keen to emulate the stunt originated by Gene Tunney but an agonized squawk, emanating from the vicinity of the Garden Corporation wrecked that plan.

Frank Bruen evidently becoming convinced this morning that the proposed flight from Endicott to New York was no figment of a press agent's imagination, Frank therefore called up Joe Jacobs and registered a vicorous objection.

"Do you realize," he told Jacobs, "that there will be no fight if Schmeling crashes into a mountain top or makes a bad landin and cracks up? Sharkey can't shadow box himself for the title. Aside from the consequences to Schmeling just think of the inconvenience of giving back all that money to the customers."

That last crack set Jacobs to thinking. He thought some more when Bruen told him the advance sale was close to $500,000.

"Maybe we can go down by train after all," he told Bruen. "I'll speak to Max."

The thing was not decided until after Joe had communicated with the Junkers people who told him that they would have a plane at the Endicott field early Wednesday morning.

"But," Jacobs related, "they also told me that this was not good flying weather. They mutered something about low visibility and things like that. And when they told me that the would not risk Max's neck i Thursday was rainy or cloudy that settled it. Schmeling must be in New York Thursday noo and we couldn't get there in train if he waited here until the morning."

Schmeling and his retinue will leave here sometime Wednesday morning, possibly by special train. It is about a six-hour run.

Diamond Pick-Ups

The game between the Braves and Pirates which was halted by Monday's showers, will be played off as part of a doubleheader when the Bucs open their second series of the season at the Wigwam on July 16.

Two popular ex-Braves are playing regularly for the St. Louis Cardinals, who make their 1930 debut at the Tepee this p. m. Andy High is holding down third base, while Dr. Eddie Farrell is playing shortstop in place of Charlie Gelbert, who has been on the injured list for a long time.

A glance at the batting averages explains why the Red Sox are so low in the standings. Tom Oliver, rookie outfielder, who is batting for .344, is the only Wagner regular who is in the .300 class.

The Cleveland Indians are one of the most dangerous clubs in the American League because they never know when they are licked. They win more games by staging big ninth inning rallies than any other outfit in either league. Their never-say-die spirit will keep them in the pennant hunt all season and may give them the flag.

Gate of Heaven C. C. Plays St. Mark's

Gate of Heaven C. C. of South Boston will play the strong St. Mark's of Dorchester on C. J. Lee playground, Wednesday evening in a regular Dot Locke Twilight League game. This will be the first appearance of the popular St. Mark's team in South Boston in its five years on the diamond. Both clubs are keen rivals and tied for first place in the league. Cheverli, ball twirler for Gate of Heaven, and Murch or Shaughnessy for St. Mark's.

Dallas Club Would Hire Alexander

Dallas, Tex., June 10 (AP)—The Dallas club of the Texas League is negotiating for the services of Grover Cleveland Alexander, major league star pitcher for 19 years, Bob Tarleton, business manager of the club, said last night.

Tarleton said he had wired Alexander, and that Alexander's reply "indicated he was interested."

"If he comes to Dallas," Tarleton added, "he'll probably have the distinction of being the highest salaried pitcher in Texas League history."

Extra Seats for Hub Twi League Games

To accommodate the fans the Somerville City club is getting at the Hub Twi League games over two hundred extra seats have been installed at Joe Perry's grounds. Soon will be ready for the clash with the new Revere team this evening. At the North Brighton playgrounds, near the Stadium, the Hopedales of Allston will entertain the Newton Upper Falls team, in a top place tie with Mt. Hope.

SCHOOL FIELD FOR TWI TEAM

Maldens team of the Boston Twilight League has been granted the use of the Pearl st. high school field for the balance of the season.

The permission was granted by the field corporation only after extended discussion.

The city government of Malden was in favor of permitting the Twilight team to use the field, however, and this fact probably had much influence on the final vote of the field corporation officials.

The Malden team will play its first home game on Thursday at 6:30 p. m., facing the strong club of St. John's, New Brunswick.

JORDAN'S

TAMULIS IS BARRED BY ENGLISH

Vito Tamulis of English High, and leading schoolboy pitcher, signed to play with the Yankees on May 17.

As a result, the English high school athletic committee has declared Tamulis was ineligible, and that games in which he took part after the date of his agreement with the Yankees have been forfeited.

These games included the struggle with English's ancient rival, Boston Latin; St. James High of Haverhill and Boston Trade School and marred a perfect season that had established English as the potential state champions.

Tamulis' action can hardly be condemned. His family was left in desperate straits as the result of the recent death of his father and when he was offered this golden opportunity with the Yankees it seemed to be a turning point in a bitter struggle to make both ends meet, so he signed.

He was under the impression that he had not turned professional until he actually played pro ball, and had no intention of deceiving the school authorities.

The Yankees intend to send Tamulis to the Chambersburg club of the Blue Ridge League of Pennsylvania for seasoning.

English High Forfeits Games

Immediately upon learning that Tamulis had signed with the Yankees the English high athletic committee issued the following statement:

"Walter F. Downey, head master, announces that the English high school baseball team forfeits the following games by its act: Boston Trades school, St. James high of Haverhill and Public Latin school.

"That action was taken by the athletic committee when that committee was informed that Vito Tamulis had agreed prior to these games to join a professional baseball club at the end of the school session.

"As soon as the athletic committee learned the facts, Vito Tamulis was declared ineligible and the action taken was made retroactive to May 17, 1930.

"Signed

Bush Benches Willie Kamm

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Willie Kamm, who led American League third basemen in fielding in 1928 and 1929, has been benched by Manager Donie Bush of the White Sox.

Kamm has failed to get started this season and was included in a wholesale shift which sent Irving Jeffries to third base, Smead Jolley from right field to left, Carol Reynolds to right and Johnny Watwood to center, in an effort to add punch to the Sox attack.

Benny Bass to Box Anderson Tonight

Milwaukee, June 10 (AP)—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, who twice has defended successfully his junior lightweight boxing title, will fight another championship bout tonight. His opponent will be Cowboy Eddie Anderson, Chicago.

The 10-round fight will take place outdoors at Borchert field. It will be the first championship bout in Wisconsin's boxing history.

Mastro in Fight With Sparks Tonight

Chicago, June 10 (INS)—Earl Mastro tonight meets an old enemy in the person of Ward Sparks of Detroit. The two featherweights will engage in a ten-round bout at the Congress Outdoor Boxing Show.

In the last meeting of the two Sparks decisioned Mastro along after a lively pace after recovering from a lacing in the first round.

Berger's Heavy Hitting Won Big League Berth

By WALTER BERGER
As told to Joe Cashman

Following my release by San Francisco, I went back to work and to playing in the infield for sandlot teams on week-ends. I followed that program all summer.

Walter Berger

In the spring of 1927, which was destined to be my busiest year, I was given another trial in the outfield by San Francisco. I did a little but not much better than I did the year before, lasting three weeks with the Seals this time.

Following my second release, I decided that I would have to play ball more regularly if I wished to eventually become a big leaguer.

So I packed my belongings and quit San Francisco in search of a diamond job.

I found one in a Montana independent league made up of teams composed of miners. I worked in the mines as well as played shortstop. But not for long.

The idea of mining and playing ball for any length of time didn't appeal to me, so, after a few weeks, I jumped the circuit in company with several other players and signed up with the Pocatello team of the Utah-Idaho League.

I spent most of that summer performing at shortstop for Pocatello. My fielding still left much to be desired but my hitting was improving all the time.

Hitting Ability Wins Job With Angels

Word of my ability with the stick traveled back to the Coast and reached the ears of the management of the Los Angeles club.

A scout was sent out to look me over and a few weeks later I was the property of the Angels.

I reported back to the Coast League at once and was again given an opportunity to strut my stuff in the outfield.

I didn't do much playing for Los Angeles in 1927, but I showed enough to be retained and shortly after the start of the 1928 season, I became a regular outfielder, a job I held down until I was purchased by the Braves last winter.

In 1928, I played in 130 games made 175 hits and banged out 20 home runs for a batting average of .327.

Last year, I engaged in 109 games, made 249 hits, including 40 home runs, and had a final average of .335.

My fielding, the critics say, is improving all the time. I don't know whether that is so, but I know I feel a lot surer of myself every game I play. I suppose that is only natural, since I have been chasing flies less than three years and am learning more about it every day.

Berger Modestly Says Homers Due to Luck

To date this season, I have hit more home runs than I did during the same period in the Coast League last year. I cant understand why I have been so successful, for I am playing on bigger parks and am facing better pitching than in the Coast League and, to my knowledge, I am not hitting the ball any harder.

It must be luck.

I am constantly asked if big league pitching is any better than the Class AA brand.

That's a silly question. Of course the big league pitching is better. It stands to reason that if minor league pitchers were as good as big leaguers, they, too, would be in fast company.

There are some pitchers in the Pacific Coast League who, when they have their control and are in top form, are just as puzzling to hit as any big leaguer, but you only face them a few times a season.

In the big league you are called upon to bat against mighty fine hurling every afternoon.

I have been successful to date and hope to keep it up, but I realize that I will have a much harder time hitting home runs and batting well over 300 for the Braves than I ever did at Los Angeles.

I like Boston immensely, as does my wife. Local fans have been wonderful to us, and if I can repay them by hitting home runs and helping the Braves, you can bet I will try my best to do so.

TWI LEAGUE IS OFFERING FINE BASEBALL

The Boston Twilight League is off to a flying start. The games played so far in the league indicate that the same high grade of baseball the league is known for will be maintained this year.

At the end of the first week the Roslindale team with four wins and no losses was out in front. While the champions of 1929 seem to be in a fair way to repeat it by no means a foregone conclusion that they will do so.

Every team in the league before long will show itself to be able to win its full share of ball games.

The Elcho Cigar team, representing South Boston, with "Stuff" Sheehan at the helm had gotten along at a fairly good clip, but without doubt will be heard from within the near future.

The Quincy Club with two wins and three losses for a young team has made a very creditable showing.

Dorchester, always a first division club, in the Boston Twilight League, cannot be overlooked when the honors are passed around. A team that has Janvrin, Freeman, Gore, St. George, McQuinn, will make any team step in any old league.

SHIFT LIKELY IN N. E. LEAGUE

Jimmy Curray, secretary of the Lewiston club of the New England League, is working his head off to keep the Lewiston ball club together. Last Saturday night, all the players on the club threatened to strike unless they were paid in full. After some wrangling, they agreed to go to Salem Sunday and will get paid this week.

There are rumors around the circuit that two clubs will shift to other cities. Salem may go to Fitchburg and Lewiston to Brunswick, Maine. The former would not be making a wise move as Fitchburg is a better town than Salem for baseball patronage.

Both games in the New England League were postponed on account of rain. Lynn will be idle today again but will be back at the Lynn grounds tomorrow for a game with Nashua.

Sportsman Fined for Running Lottery

Bridgeport, Ct., June 10 (INS)—Clifford J. "Connie" Lewis, well known sportsman and bowling alley proprietor, today was under sentence of one year, and ordered to pay a fine of $200, following conviction in superior court of setting up a lottery.

According to testimony at the trial, an alleged lottery ring, of which Lewis was said to be the head, printed and distributed nearly 200,000 tickets weekly.

Bike Fans Anxious to See Spencer

Bike rans are anxiously awaiting the debut of Freddy Spencer, veteran sprint champion, behind the motors at the Revere cycle track. Rain has already twice forced Not Butler to put over the 30-mile race in which Spencer will be one of the contestants, but the interest of the fans is not dampened one bit.

The same race is billed for Saturday night. Spencer will face four others, including Frankie Kennan who won the only race staged at Revere this year; Al Letourneau the little Frenchman; Larry Gaffney, Irish champion, and Anthony Zucchetti, riding his first year behind pace. Zucchetti, by the way, rates highly in the minds of bike expert.

Trojan Tennis Stars to Play in Tourney

Los Angeles, June 10 (AP)—Two members of the University of Southern California tennis team, Jack De Lara and Bob Gates, will leave here today for the east, where they will play in the national intercollegiate tournament at Haverford, Pa., June 16. De Lara was runner-up at the national municipal court championship at Buffalo last summer.

The BIG House

By JACK LAIT

Morgan felt his own eyes begin to water. He heard the other two grumbling. The rattled ether of the bombs had decreased the visibility in the place. Morgan could hardly see his hand before him. But he felt his hand before him.

"I'm going to get Morg—I'll see him dead if that's the last thing I ever see," snarled Butch.

"Hold it, Butch," Morgan warned. He could hear Butch's labored breathing.

Morgan pulled. At the same time the pistols of both Butch and Joe sang out. A whirl of gas almost obscured the figures of the other two men now in the door. All were firing, close range, point bank. Morgan felt a sharp pang in his shoulder and another in his calf. He saw the great bulk of Butch flop. Joe was choking and coughing and crazily feeling for somewhere.

"Pass me more cartridges, Joe, I want to make a good job of it," Butch blithered hysterically. "Kitin' him once ain't enough."

"What y'mean Kent?"

"Kent—ha! ha!—they got Kent—riddled him like a sieve. So it was Kent. He would—that skirt, he's just the type—Kent! Wow!"

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

To make the brassie swing take a square stance and have your feet comfortably spread. There is no fixed rule on this but the feet should not be far apart enough that restricts body turning and will cause tightness about the shoulders and therefore in your hands and arms too. The ball should be at a point off your left leg, and certainly not far-ther back than your left-foot instep. Watch the ball's position, since it is exceedingly easy to crawl too far forward on the ball, which will put the ball about midway with your body. There is something about aching the line that exerts a tendency to pull you forward on your ball and you must watch that. Your hands should be just inside the center of your left leg, with the shaft running straight to the ball. Do not have your hands ahead of the ball. Hold your hands in toward your body rather than out. Avoid any reaching for the ball. Stand up as straight as you can, with the back arched, but the body not stooped. Then, to start your back swing, withdraw your hands directly across your right leg.

Raquel's Escort in Night Club Offends—She Joins Spanish Dance

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos, daughter of a Spanish father and an American mother, has fled from her home in Hermosa, on the Mexican border, and come to New York. She puts up at the Hotel Brixton and starts to see the town. One night at the theater a strange woman speaks to her and invites her to a night-club party after the show. They are escorted by Mr. Benny Barnes.

CHAPTER 12

The Club Divine occupied the top story of an antiquated three-story building on the fringe of the theatrical district going north from Times square.

On the left it jogged elbows with a towering stone apartment house. On the right it nudged a dilapidated brick structure of the early eighties that was being demolished to make way for what the signs posted on its disintegrating skeleton announced would be "positively the most gigantic moving picture palace on earth."

Raquel Toasted
In Wine by Barnes

A lookout, in the form of a six-foot-two tower of brawn in cossack uniform, bowed stiffly from the waist as he recognized the man of the party

"Good evening, Mr. Barnes," he said, unctuously.

"Some of the Cordon Rouge, Charley," ordered the host. "And don't die on the way. I'm thirsty."

"I don't care for drinks," Raquel said with a touch of hauteur. Benny was "put-putting" his lips in a most annoying manner.

A blare of music. Saxophones wailing their primitive lament. Banjos that strummed with every heart-beat. The incredibly sweet tremble of a violin. Trap-drums snaring Cymbals ringing out clarion calls.

Now they were dancing. A pond of figures, swirling, eddying in rhythmic motion to the music. The rainbow of pleasure reflected itself in the mirrored floor.

"It is—why, it must be like heaven," breathed Raquel. Then revised the notion mentally to, "It could be heaven."

Benny pretty much spoiled the view of heaven; his tongue played little tricks on him now when he tried to talk. The wine thickened it. He reached again for Raquel's hand. Tipped over his glass of wine

Barnes Fell Back

She caught the finger bent it cruelly backward. Her teeth, gleaming blue in the half-light, were bared at him. Her black eyes stung him

"Don't be a baby," she said coolly, with the crackle of ice.

Mr. Barnes fell back limply in his chair. Beads of perspiration speckled his bald forehead. He rubbed the offended finger

Raquel gave Mr Barnes the benefit of a cold shoulder Two dancers had come upon the cleared floor. Spanish Senorita Caballero. Had they been caught up and carried here from a fiesta in some sequestered village of old Mexico? Raquel wondered

The room went dark Only the Spanish dancers remained in a pool of yellow light on the floor. A hand was sliding, cautiously, along Raquel's arm. Slowly upward . . . Benny's hand with the thick black fuzz on it. She must get away. Get out of this place. Benny didn't mean to stop. With his thick arms Away—but how?

Tango. It was what the senorita and caballero were trying to dance. Raquel moved free of Benny's hand. That was better. Now she could watch the dance Such a silly tango. The dancers were against the back of her chair

"No, no," she said to them in Spanish. "You do not make it good, as it should be. Click the heel! Click!"

Raquel did not know, but she had played directly into the hands of the dancers. The Club Divine encouraged camaraderie on the part of its patrons. Spontaneity. It was a policy that payed well. Famous stage stars declaimed, when their spirits ran high, for patrons of the Club Divine. A great prima donna, who sang for not less than four figures a performance, had even warbled an aria there on one memorable night.

The caballero motioned to the orchestra to stop. He turned to Raquel.

Raquel Dances
Then Flees the Club

"You dance the tango, Senorita?" His set smile was wreathed in doubt. Glimpsing her more closely, it changed to one of radiant invitation. A challenge

"Come!" he said

She put her hat with the yellow rose on the table. She did not stop to ask herself why she accepted this stranger's challenge. She only knew that she was dipping and swirling, rippling her body, now fiercely, now languorously, to music that stole away her senses. She was gliding along a lake on a crimson and purple velvet barge with flowers and incense and white swimming faces that turned to drink in her grace, her beauty. Her black hair, loosened by the vigor of the dance, billowed about her like a sable scarf

If only there were no Bennies in this heaven!—The music was far away now, sobbing to a close.

"This room—it chokes," she murmured to the caballero. "We shall finish there, by the door. I must breathe, Senor——"

The music ceased. It was followed by tumultuous applause Palm against palm. High-pitched voices calling to her. The caballero's arm guiding her back and back

Another step backward, and, slipping from her partner, she was through the door. In the hall of the candy-box elevator.

"Down. Quick, down. You hear?"

Out in the street, sable scarf flying. People staring. Slower now. They would think she was loco, stop her A man in a blue suit with brass buttons at the corner He would tell her where it was

"Will you show me, please, the way to the Hotel Brixton?" she asked, ignoring the stern question in his eyes. "I've lost my way."

She was as casual as though she had stepped out of the street car then rounding the corner, and was, for the moment, a trifle confused by the diverging streets.

The Beauty Box
—BY HELEN FOLLETT—

Toenails should be cut straight across Cutting down at the side thickens the surrounding tissue that form [illegible] der the nails and in time causes discomfort. Clipping the cuticle at side or base of nail makes it heavy The less toenails are tampered with, the better. With shoes properly fitted they should kick up no trouble at all

All bending exercises tend to taper the waist, to lessen breadth of hips. Scatter the contents of the button box over the floor. Pick up the buttons, one by one. Each time stand erect, lift up on the toes, come down on the heels, bend at the waistline, keeping the legs rigid. Too much sitting or not enough walking puts flesh on the body, lets muscles go slack, adds to circumference

Liver spots are not caused by the liver; they are chemical changes in the pigment of the skin. When the flesh lifts under the spots, it is practically impossible to remove them. Lemon juice applied in the early stages will sometimes discourage them. Peroxide they don't like. The more cold cream the better. Exposure to sunlight is bad policy.

Two items in the daily paper—very close to one another, without intention; so close that the tail of the eye caught one while reading the other—

"Arrives with 35 trunks. Says fashions have never been so alluring as now—" And—

"Kind-hearted police arrive loaded with substantial food—bread and meat and milk and butter—deserted mother struggles and at last gives up—children have nothing to wear—"

There you are. "Nothing to wear!" I know that the lady with 35 trunks has said, even while she HAD the 35 trunks newly crammed "What on earth am I going to wear—not a thing!" She was probably invited, out of a clear sky, to the Breakfast Club. Or perhaps to meet a king at a garden party. She has said it, and thousands of w[illegible] eh! When it wasn't true. Complementing the Printed Frock
—By ANN ARDEN—

Ann Arden broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m

THERE ARE certain rules for complementing the printed frock that have remained static last season—others have developed for attaining a new kind of chic for this new summer season. But the essence of printed costume smartness is still simplicity

* * *

CHOOSE accents not for their individual appeal, but for what they will do for the print; for after all, the printed frock is the gem and the accessories merely the setting

* * *

* * *

DAY TIME prints of a general pastel character will appear to the best advantage with dark accents. A "pink impression" for instance is attractively complemented with accessories in maroon, yellow by accessories in brown and so on

* * *

THE PARTICULARLY fresh and chic quality of a black and white print can perhaps be best emphasized by pearls, by fine black straw hats, by straws banded or faced in white fabric in the newest manner, by classically cut black kid slippers and related things. A vivid color accent is permissible of course.

* * *

A PRINT in two shades of green might have a third green for its accessory color even to footwear.

* * *

THE SMART and vivid print of the dashing costume pictured is a swirling design of cream and green on a black background. The cowl neckline is finished in black, and the drapery forms the sleeves and cape back. The frock has a fitted hipline, and circular side sections

* * *

THE HAT is a poke bonnet shape of rough straw in black; the bag black patent leather, with green composition handle, and the pumps are black moire, with rever-like bows, and small steel beaded buckle.

* * *

DRESSES achieve a most versatile expression in the numerous capes, capelets and caps that give new and naive lines to the feminine costumes of summer

* * *

THE CAPE dress either wears its cape over long sleeves, or else uses the cape to cover the shoulder, when the frock is sleeveless. And dresses with capes are smart at all hours

Correct Manners — By Mrs. Beeckman

"Pretty Words"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

How should a young girl show her appreciation to her escort for taking her to a ball and for flowers sent before? E. D.

With her most gracious manner and with her "prettiest words" she will thank him for both of these charming attentions and courtesies.

Presents to Employer

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I know a young girl who is working as a maid for two men. Last Christmas she gave them Christmas presents. Was this all right for her to do?

Was it correct for them to give her a Christmas present? I have been told that girls shouldn't give Christmas presents to their employers. ANN.

Although it would, undoubtedly, have been better for this girl not to have given her employers Christmas presents it was, I am sure, only a generous-thoughted impulse for her to express in th[illegible] way her friendliness and good w[illegible] to these employers of hers. They probably have been very kind to her, and she wished to show th[illegible] her gratitude and appreciation However, in these cases, it is better form not to give Christmas p[illegible]ents.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

EVENING AMERICAN MARKETS

New York Stocks | News of Street

The effects of the heavy shake-out of the last week or two were still in evidence. Industrial stocks and specialties staggered through a comporatively narrow price margin, with the ticker trailing far behind and the market back to a 6,000,000-share pace much of the time.

STEEL'S TONNAGE

A 294,000-ton shrinkage in the May volume of unfilled tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corporation was in line with expectations and the stock held steady most of the day.

The Bears singled out for special attack today Westinghouse and Radio, both of which were violently churned around on the lowest price basis of the present move.

Westinghouse was hammered down 6 points to 156½ and Radio finally broke under 40 to a new low at 38¾, a loss of 30 points from the April high price. Not since the April peak was recorded have the equivalent of today's lowest prices been quoted for American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Radio Keith Orpheum, Paramount, Chrysler Motor, International Telephone and other favorites.

Up to this period, spectacular price movements in the specialties were generally lacking, and brokers were struggling to stabilize conditions on the speculative board.

TARIFF BRINGS WORRY.

The breakdown of the ticker service—which is not yet functioning to capacity, necessitated frequent bulletins from the stock exchange floor.

There were no decided changes in business conditions and congressional dallying with the tariff bill has "gotten on the nerves" of financial and industrial leaders.

Houdaille Hershey cut its dividend rate from $2 annually to $1.20, and Tubize Chatillon and Durham Duplex omitted the payments due at this time. American Radiator and U. S. Radiator reduced their price schedules, and the recent advance from 4.50 to 4.60 cents a pound made by several sugar refiners was cancelled. The American Bankers Association Journal, however, in a survey of business, stated that the ground was being laid for substantial recovery.

Such shares as American Can, Allied Chemical, Loews, Eastman, Johns-Mansville, American Tobacco "B," Byers, Electric Auto Light and Radio Keith gained 3 to 5 points in the early afternoon rally, and U. S. Steel, General Electric, Chesapeake & Ohio, Colorado Fuel and Macy moved up 2 or more.

During the selling around midday, Westinghouse Electric, Goodrich, DuPont, United Aircraft, Radio, North American and American Telephone lost 2 to 6 points. Shares selling at new lows for the year included International Nickel, International Telephone, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Beth Steel, Studebaker, Warner Brothers and Alleghany Corporation.

Credit continued plentiful with call money at 3 per cent. It was rumored that the New York Federal Reserve Bank had requested permission to reduce its rediscount rate but that reserve authorities in Washington had ordered postponement pending reductions in other reserve areas.

In the last few minutes of trading U. S. Steel was up nearly 5 points, J. I. Case 15 and Worthington Pump 12. Gains of 5 or 6 or more points were numerous.

THEATER CHAIN GROWTH SEEN

Salient among recent tendencies of the motion picture industry has been the enlargement of chains owned by the principal producers, says the Standard Statistic Company in a current survey of the amusement field. The survey follows in part:

"Competition for exhibition units among the leaders of the motion picture industry has been exceptionally keen, with the consequence that unusually large additions have been made since the first of the year. The largest expansion has been achieved by Paramount, which added about 300 new units, while at the same time the organization has leased a sizeable number and is constructing many more.

"Other producers also have made substantial headway in theater absorption, while some of the minor companies, in a shifting of policy, have been selling their exhibition outlets. In view of recent expansion, it is estimated that there are now owned or leased by Paramount 1400 units, by Fox-Loew 1175, Warner Bros. 500 and R-K-O 300.

"Chain control of theaters has advanced steadily in the last half decade. There are still less than 35 per cent under chain management, but the number includes units in all key exhibition centers, and their revenue represents about 75 per cent of the total. Aggregate domestic theaters exceeded 20,500, of which, it is estimated, over 11,000 are wired for sound exhibitions. The total thus wired will probably reach 14,000 by the end of the year."

Keith-Albee-Orpheum

NEW FINANCING IN 1930 NEAR 1929 FIGURES

By FRANK H. MELOON

The explanation of rising loans to brokers is not hard to find. New public financing in the United States during the five months to May 31, 1930, excluding domestic and Canadian municipals, aggregated $2,869,079,955, according to compilations announced by Otto P. Schwarzschild, editor of American Underwriting Houses and Their Issues. This total compares with $2,874,874,000 for the same period of 1929.

* * *

The review as rendered by Mr. Schwarzschild includes stock issues as well as bonds and notes. Preferred stocks of a set par were considered at par, while all no par stocks were calculated at public offering prices. The compilation reveals that J. P. Morgan & Co. led the list of investment houses during the first five months by heading syndicates amounting to $177,088,000. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., with $241,325,000 ranked second, and Dillon, Read & Co., third, with $234,055,000.

* * *

The results of the first five months from the standpoint of total business participated in, either as head or participant, show that the National City Co. accounted for the largest volume, with $753,[illegible]. Harris, Forbes & Co. ranked next, with an aggregate of $717,575,000, while the Guaranty Co. of N. Y. was third, with $663,988,000.

* * *

Note the interesting opinion of J. D. Tew, president of Goodrich, that the rubber industry, in which upwards of $1,250,000,000 is now invested in this country, will grow more rapidly in the next decade than in the past. This may not seem possible to many of those who appreciate how rapidly the industry has grown during the past ten years, with Boston, by the way, becoming the second largest port in the nation in its receipts of rubber from the Straits Settlements.

J. D. Tew

* * *

Rubber was at first used only to erase penciled errors, by British students, who formerly employed bread crumbs for that purpose. Civil Service officials, who now ask young people questions that our brightest lawyers, for example, find themselves unable to answer, might add: "What are the present uses of rubber?"

* * *

"Bear raids" near the finish of Wall Street sessions are again becoming common. Because traders in customers' rooms are kept ignorant of floor prices, through the tardiness of the tape, which was 51 minutes late yesterday, for example, manipulation becomes increasingly easy. The speedy ticker, which may be working by September, are widely expected to put an end to this sort of thing.

* * *

Too much emphasis is being laid on some of the recent 5 per cent price cuts in certain fairly high-priced commodities. The fact is that price concessions of more than the amount of the cut have commonly been obtained on some of them for a year or more.

* * *

Congressman John J. Douglas of Boston has introduced measure in Congress providing for installation of pneumatic tubes to carry mail between Boston postoffice and East Boston airport. American Pneumatic would benefit by passage of the measure.

* * *

President Walter Teagle of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and Vice-President Moffett returned on the Leviathan from London. Mr. Teagle stated his trip was to attend a routine meeting in London of Standard Oil foreign officials. He has been away but 10 days.

Theodore Prince & Co. announce Dayton P. Haigney, who has been associated with them for several years, has been appointed manager of their Boston office.

Catchings Cheerful on Stock Outlook

New York, June 10—Reports in the financial district say Waddill Catchings, who resigned last week as president of Goldman, Sachs Trading Corp., has been made chairman of the board of Blue Ridge Corp. and Shenandoah Corp. Mr. Catchings said he has never relinquished his post as director in the two corporations, but would not admit that he had been made chairman. "I have not sold one share of Goldman, Sachs Trading stock, and I have plenty," he said. "I have no doubt it will come through fine." Reported that Mr. Catchings will be closely associated with Harrison Williams in management of Central States Electric Corp. and American Cities Power & Light Corp.

QUINCY SELLS AT NEW LOW ON THE MOVE

Prices were at lower levels in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today with Quincy Mining at a new low on the move at 17½. The issue rallied a little in later dealings.

Fresh low marks were shown by United Founders, American Founders and Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway adjustment. Edison dropped over 3 points and Torrington was down 2. Waltham Watch prior preferred was at a new high for the year. General Electric was up over 2 points.

Point or more losses were shown by the following issues: American & Continental, Boston & Albany, General Capital, Waldorf, Pacific Mills, Eastern Mass first preferred and B stock and Publis Utility Holdings.

Negotiations looking toward the merger of several New England cotton goods mills in the largest company of its kind in the East have reached preliminary stages, it was learned in banking circles today.

Plans for the merger are stil in the formulative stage, and the audit of the books of the concerns tentatively invited to participate has not been completed, it was said today by a banker familiar with the efforts being made to consummuate the consolidation.

A large New York banking house is understood to have interested itself in the plan, as the prospective banker, but has not committed itself, pending a study of its financia aspects.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

TO DIVERSIFY.

E. F., Beverly—I own 60 shares Standard Oil of New York, 50 Irving Trust, 30 Standard Oil of New Jersey, 20 Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, 11 American Telephone & Telegraph and 10 United States Steel preferred. I want to invest an additional $5000, now in a savings bank. What do you suggest?

Ans.—Bonds would fit your list. Investing $2000 in Prudence Company 5½s and a similar amount in National Title Guaranty will give you an annual income of $220. They are guaranteed as to principal and interest. The best place for the other $1000 is in the savings bank. You have excellent stocks; keep them.

TO PROTECT PRINCIPAL

Miss G. E., Lynn—I am self-supporting and have saved $4000. I want to invest $2000, but my first consideration is protection of principal. What shall I buy?

Ans.—Except in United States government bonds, you cannot get better protection of principal than you will find in guaranteed first mortgages. The sum of $2000 invested in Suffolk Titles & Guarantee 5½s will bring $110 annually. With $2000 left in the savings bank you will have a fair start for an additional surplus.

FIVE PER CENT

E. V., Boston—I own some first mortgage real estate bonds and want to buy stock. I have under consideration Texas Corporation. Is that a good stock?

Ans.—Texas Corporation can pay the $3 dividend instituted in 1912. The company is an important factor in the petroleum industry. Earnings for 1929 were $4.90 a share on 9,850,000 shares, compared with $5.34 on 8,443,354 shares outstanding in 1928. At recent level the yield was 5 per cent. How much have you in the savings bank?

CURB MARKET LOWER, BUT IS STEADIED

New York, June 10—Pivotal Curb stocks steadied in today's market, but liquidation was again in evidence throughout the general list and new lows for the year were numerous.

The opening was soft and active and the ticker soon got about 20 minutes behind the trading. Only a few large blocks appeared, however, notably 32,300 shares of Cities Service, representing the accumulation of overnight orders, at 30, off ⅜.

Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, United Light & Power "A," Niagara Hudson and several others hovered close to the Monday close. American Gas & Electric moved up a couple of points.

It was in the specialties, and investment company shares, and to a lesser extent in the oils that the weakness was most acute, although earlier losses were reduced in many instances. Deere broke to a new low.

Although earlier losses were reduced in many instances, Deere broke to a new low. Technicolor likewise went just below its previous bottom, Columbia Pictures and U. S. Finishing were also heavy.

Pennroad, Goldman Sachs and United Founders also went into new low ground.

Leather Industry Has Upward Trend

New York, June 10—Report of Reynolds Spring Co. for quarter ended March 31 follows: Sales, $1,249,527; net $205,826; expenses $146,897; depreciation, $61,316; interest, $13,540; net loss, $16,017.

President Munn said:

"The loss of $16,017 reflects the effect of general business depression on our leather and bakelite divisions, as the spring division operated at a profit of $67,092. While there has been no rapid improvement in the leather industry, it is showing a gradual uptrend and we are diversifying our leather products as much as posible.

"The spring division continues to show considerable improvement, with the Detroit plant operating at 100 per cent capacity, and it is expected earnings in this division for the second quarter will show an improvement over a year ago."

Simms Wipes Out Quarter's Deficit

New York, June 10—As a result of increased refinery operations, Simms Petroleum Co. net in April after charges and reserves was more than sufficient to offset the net loss of $37,554 in first quarter. Current assets increased approximately $100,000 during month.

At end of April current assets were over $6,000,000, while current liabilities were $700,000, a ration of better than 8 to 1. The company had approximately $590,000 in cash April 30. The quarterly dividend of 40 cents on the 835,362 shares outstanding at end of March, payable June 14 to stock of record May 29, calls for $334,144. Operations in May and June should further improve the cash position.

Sidelights of Market

Excluding the natural increase due to new stores, there has been a definite upward trend in business of W. T. Grant Co. the past several months. For four weeks ended May 24 sales of old stores gained 2.02 per cent over the same units in 1929. This was in contrast to a gain of only 0.87 per cent the preceding six weeks and a decrease of 5.5 per cent in first six weeks of the fiscal year, from February 1 to March 15.

Gamewell Co. by acquiring Rockwood Sprinkler Co. is rounding out its present established business. There is now a distinct possibility of the linking up of sprinkler systems with fire signal systems so that when a fire breaks out, say, on the 10th floor of some building, the exact location will be recorded at fire headquarters. Under the present system it is necessary for the fire apparatus to go to the fire alarm box and then be directed to the building in which there is a fire.

* * *

With government co-operation, Mr. Everett said, new uses are being found for cotton, reducing overproduction, which has affected business. Agreement of mill operators to curtail working hours a so has decreased production and made employment steady, he added.

U. S. Steel's tonnage decline was in keeping with normal seasonal trends, and was less severe than is sometimes experienced during May. Steel's May decline exceeded last year's drop of 130,000 tons, but was small compared to declines of about 450,000 tons and 410,000 tons in May of 1928 and 1927, respectively.

Another triple holiday is in prospect for the big markets. New York Cotton Exchange members are already circulating a petition asking for closing of the exchange July 5, Saturday following the July 4 holiday.

J. P. Maher, formerly financial editor of the New York American, writing the market letter for Shields & Co., states:

"United Corporation proved vulnerable to professional attacks due to report that financing was planned. Such report is not bad news as in order for the corporation to carry out the huge growth planned for it there must be several offerings of new securities. In such a market as experienced now, however, almost any development can be given a bearish tinge."

Net profits of Wm. Wrigley, Jr., & Co. for six months ending June 30 will exceed the same period last year, according to Wm. Wrigley, Jr., chairman. For six months ended June 30, 1929, net profit was $5,-211,990, or $2.83 a share on the 1,-999,974 shares outstanding. Mr. Wrigley denied that there was any basis for a rumor that a split-up in common shares was forthcoming later in the year.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 65 cents a share on the common stock and also an extra dividend of 10 cents a share, the same as three months ago, both payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 18. Thus, the company is in an exceptionally strong position to carry out a wide program of production in the future.

FORBES SEES OPPOSITION TO NEW TARIFF

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 10—Opposition to the tariff bill is multiplying so rapidly that many people believe President Hoover will veto it on the basis that it violates the promises he held out to the people, that it would increase the cost of living here and that it would gravely jeopardize our exports, now so essential to prosperity, seeing that 30 foreign nations have protested against the measure, suplemented by the threatened boycotting of American products.

B. C. Forbes

The public, and even the business world, long manifested an apathetic attitude towards the jockeying in Congress. It was something of a Chinese puzzle to know from day to day what was what. The House would do one thing one day; the Senate would do something different the next day. Then one or both would vote all over again and, as likely as not, undo what had already been done.

But at last the people have become aroused. There is no doubting that the tariff bill has become the burning question before the thinking people of the country.

Nor is there today room to doubt that hostility to the hocus-pocus measure is becoming more bitter and more widespread.

* * *

W. T. Rawleigh of Freeport, Ill., president of the company bearing his name, writes, in part.

"For many years of my business life I was in sympathy with the moderate protective policies of the Republican party, because it was generally recognized and conceded that our small infant industries of that day needed protection to enable them to compete with the old well-established industries of England, France and Germany and the cheap labor of the far eastern countries.

"But as my experience has increased through the conduct of my own business here and in foreign countries, by intensive study of economic conditions throughout the world, I have become convinced that the excessively high protective tariff system which has grown up in this country constitutes not only an unwarranted burden upon the consumers, but a serious obstacle to sound and stable prosperity.

"It has long seemed to me that this tariff question will never be settled right until the intelligent and informed business men of the country assume the leadership and insist upon a readjustment of our tariff system that would be in the interest of the country as a whole with due regard to both our domestic and foreign trade."

John Lurie, Ferrocrete Import Company, New York, states:

"Cement imports of the United States during 1929 were 1,727,000 barrels, approximately 25 per cent less than for the preceding year and only 1 per cent of the total domestic consumption. Due to high rail freight rates, the imported product cannot compete in price and is not sold at any inland points. The market of the importer is entirely limited to the seaboard.

"Cement is a 90 per cent machine-made product and the small benefit to American labor is more than offset by revenues derived by the American merchant marine, American stevedores, and the handling and distribution of the imported product.

"The proposed duty of 23 cents per barrel will add an additional $46,000,000 to the already enormous profits now enjoyed by cement mills."

Robert S. Clary, Washington, D. C., in course of a lengthy communication, says:

"Some day our big business men will all agree that the United States cannot emulate the foolish factory which tries to sell 90 per cent of its total output to its own employes. Some day, I am sure, our leaders will appreciate that if trade-preventing tariff walls are good for a nation, they should also be good for an individual state—and vice versa. Yet I'm confident that the most militant Grundyite wouldn't think of advocating the erection of 'protective' and 'retaliation' spite-fence tariff walls by the individual commonwealths of these United States of ours. It's absurd."

Newspapers have a motto, "When in doubt, leave out." As to whether this proposed higgeidy-piggeldy tariff should be passed, even Congress admittedly now has grave doubts.

At the Radio Dial

In dedication to the Portland, Oregon, Rose Festival, the R. K. Olians, of the R. K. O. hour, will present rose songs of every description tonight at 10:30 over station WEEI. Three old-time favorites, "Roses of Yesterday, "Last Rose of Summer" and "Mighty Lak a Rose," will be played by the orchestra. A humorous monologue by Carl McCullough, of Clark and McCullough, will be presented. Incidentally, Leonie Coulter, the former Mrs. Rudy Vallee, will sing during the course of the program.

The Landt Trio are guest artists tonight at 9 o'clock on the Eveready hour. These popular vocalists who appear on many NBC programs will sing "Dancing the Devil Away" and a novelty number, "Minnie the Mermaid" to the accompaniment of Nat Shilkret and the Eveready orchestra.

Bostonians will be glad to hear that Al Frazzini, their favorite song writer, has written the theme song to Amos and Andy's picture, Check and Double Check. A single guess and you have the name of it—"I'se Regusted."

IT WAS GALA NIGHT last night on the air. The Boston stations had an excellent array of entertainment. "Believe It or Not" Ripley, on the Beaconlight program over WEEI, started the evening at 7:30 by revealing some interesting and amazing facts. Perhaps a little less revelation and a little more entertainment would better balance the program and improve it even more.

One of the few non-advertising programs on the air, the Symphonic Rythm Makers on WEEI at 8, are propounding a new "American" music, a symphonic and rythmic jazz. They played selections from "Sweet Adeline" with noteworthy individuality. More programs such as this one will never harm the air.

HENRY BURGIG went announcer last night. He "announced the Kentucky Derby" over WNAC on the Ceco hour at 8:30 with his customary mispronouncing of words and installing the phrases that have nothing to do with anything. He, unlike most dialogue comedians, does not overdo his brogue nor ramble on into boredom.

Ted Fiorito's Maytag orchestra from WBZA at 9 played the perennial "St. Louis Blues" and gave it a lilting, moving and symphonic mood that recalled Ted Lewis' playing of it. So long as orchestras like the Maytag play old numbers, listeners will never tire of them.

General Motors played host to Gladys Swarthout, the youthful Metropolitan Opera star, over WEEI at 9:30 last night. She sang "Niejata," an aria from "Sadko," Victor Herbert's "Dream Melody," "Sequidilla" from "Carmen," and "Spring Moods" by Smith with remarkable ease. Miss Swarthout's singing was clear, even, deep and moving.

"HUMORESQUE" and other Dvorak melodies will be played tonight from 8:30 to 9 by Michael Rosenker, violinist, when the Libby Ensemble presents their imaginary pilgrimage to Czecho-Slovakia.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, New England author, will have his novel, "Shavings," presented tonight at 7:30 on WEEI by Soconyland Sketches. This is the second of a series of three presenting this comedy.

CONCERNING RADIO

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless true, that the poor, little, inanimate microphone, familiarly termed the "Mike," holds a world of terror for many of the uninitiated in broadcasting. Just why a person about to talk, sing or play to an invisible audience should become flustered and get a bad case of nerves, is something which can be explained by a psychologist more intelligently than we can do it.

It does not seem to matter that the broadcaster is in a peaceful atmosphere, perhaps among friends, in a quiet studio with no discordant noises to distract his attention, when he, or she, hears the "All quiet, please," of the announcer, and knows it is time for them to begin they are filled with some unnamed terror.

Actors or actresses, it makes little difference; they are attacked with a sort of stage fright and remind one of the happy, carefree attitude of a patient in a dentist's waiting room, who is about to have a tooth extracted.

We recall the first time we were before a "mike." The first two minutes were awful and seemed an eternity. The best description we can give is that it seemed impossible to get our breath; about like a runner before he gets his second wind; and the bones in our legs felt about as substantial as well-cooked pieces of macaroni.

Still, one lives through it. Try it some time.

Regardless of whether or not we like the short advertising talk announcers give in conjunction with the broadcast entertainment, we must realize it is an absolute necessity. It can and is, at times, done too uninterestingly; too long and too obviously a sales talk.

Some five years ago, when the broadcasting entertainment was mostly contributed gratis to the station, it was not necessary to make other than a short, introductory talk concerning the feature. Commercialism had not entered into the field then.

But the expense of operating a broadcasting station was tremendous, and it was absolutely necessary to sell accounts on the air if they wished to continue to exist. In fact, were it not for the advertising appropriation of numerous of our big American concerns, who spend thousands of dollars weekly for their broadcasting entertainment, it is very doubtful if so many wonderful, entertaining programs would come into our homes.

Please remember this when you feel a little annoyed when the announcer mentions the product behind the broadcast.

TRIPLE PROBE OF SOS CALL LAUNCHED

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service

Washington, June 10—A triple inquiry has been launched into the alleged fake "SOS" call, which cut off an attack on the "radio trust" broadcast by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, Saturday night.

While the naval communications service was attempting to find out if any other station besides the Tuckerton, N. J., marine radio station heard the call, the federal radio commission and the Commerce Department were endeavoring to locate the source of the call and determine if it was a fake.

At the same time, Senator Dill, of Washington, leading radio authority in Congress, while absolving the Radio Corporation of America of responsibility for the "indefensible and contemptible act," charged that the "SOS" was sent out "for the purpose of stopping the speech." Reed had just launched into an attack on the "radio trust" when the interruption occurred.

Dill linked the mysterious SOS call with the sudden resignation of Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris of the United States District Court of Delaware, just as the government filed its suit for the dissolution of the "radio trust."

He added that this was "especially significant when it is recalled that Judge Morris has been the thorn in the side of the Radio Corporation."

Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman of the radio commission announced that a thorough investigation of the "SOS" call was under way and pointed out that the penalty for sending out a fake call was a $5000 fine.

CHILD BURIED ALIVE IN CAVE

Manchester, N. H., June 10—Crushed beneath tons of clay and sand, Leon F. Eaton, 11, of 46 Main st., was buried alive here last night when the roof and sides of a sand cave tumbled in on him.

The lad was extricated by firemen and citizens, who dug for three-quarters of an hour. He was pronounced dead by Medical Referee Jules O. Gagnon after firemen tried to revive him with a lungmotor for more than an hour.

Young Eaton, with three other lads, William and Dennis Murphy and Sylva Lessieur, found the cave while playing on Blueberry Hill. The four started for home last night but Eaton returned with a stick to test the roof.

After he prodded the roof and sides several times the cave-in occurred. The Murphy boys and young Lessieur raced for home and their parents notified police.

Mr. Frazier will go to South Dakota to engage in missionary work, and Mr. Shulz will be assistant at St. James' Church, Chicago.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Control of Our Foreign Policy Rests With Senate and Not With President

On the motion of Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the Committee on Foreign Relations has very properly required of the Department of State all the diplomatic correspondence in its files that relates to the Geneva naval conference.

And on motion of Senator Johnson of California, the same committee with equal propriety has required of the same department ALL the diplomatic correspondence in its files relating to the London naval conference, instead of the incomplete set of exchanges submitted in response to a previous request of the committee.

Both Senator Johnson and Senator Moses know full well what every Senator should keep clearly in his mind, that the constitutional control of foreign policy under our system of government rests with the Senate and not with the President.

To the President the Constitution gives the right to negotiate a treaty, but to the Senate is reserved the final decision whether the treaty negotiated by the President shall be accepted or rejected.

Never has this system of control of foreign policy been more clearly expounded or more heartily defended than James Bryce thus expounds and defends it in "The American Commonwealth" in the following words:

"The Senate through its right of confirming or rejecting engagements with foreign powers, secures a general control over foreign policy. . . . This control of foreign policy by the Senate does something to meet the difficulties which popular government find in dealing with foreign powers. . . . The necessity of ratification by the Senate, in order to give effect to a treaty, enables the country to retire from a doubtful bargain . . . and it is a merit of the system of senatorial control that it has tended, by discouraging the executive from schemes which may prove resultless, TO DIMINISH THE TASTE FOR FOREIGN ENTERPRISES, AND TO SAVE THE COUNTRY FROM BEING ENTANGLED WITH ALLIANCES, PROTECTORATES, RESPONSIBILITIES OF ALL SORTS BEYOND ITS OWN FRONTIERS. IT IS THE EASIER FOR THE AMERICANS TO PRACTICE THIS RESERVE BECAUSE THEY NEED NO ALLIANCES, STANDING UNASSAILABLE IN THEIR OWN HEMISPHERE."

It is high time that the Hoover administration acquaint itself with this AMERICAN SYSTEM OF SENATORIAL CONTROL OF FOREIGN POLICY.

It is high time that the Hoover administration begin to show a proper deference for the Constitution of the United States which is the supreme law of the land. And the way to do that is for the Department of State to comply promptly and cheerfully to the very appropriate, because entirely constitutional, request of "the great committee of the Senate" that it be placed in immediate possession of ALL the diplomatic exchanges relating to both the Geneva and London naval conferences.

Unless and until all this correspondence is placed at the disposal of Chairman Borah and the members of the Committee on Foreign Relations, that committee should suspend further consideration of the London naval treaty.

Any reluctance on the part of the executive to obey the will of the Senate in this vital matter is a challenge to the constitutional power of the Senate which every Senator in Congress, loyal to his oath of office, should and doubtless will meet standing.

Fighting the Causes

Social Workers Perform Real Service

To the 7000 men and women who have assembled here for the great conference on social work, we offer hearty greetings.

You are engaged in a cause of noble inspiration.

It is your purpose and duty, as we understand it, to combat and erase the causes of crime and delinquency and to subdue or ameliorate the suffering which results from it.

You are not concerned with any self-righteous crusades which litter the statute books with new ordinances and unsupportable moral codes calculated to throw men into the prison, the jail and the workhouse, there to develop the criminal instincts which are latent in all of us while depriving their families of support and reducing them to the dregs of society.

Stick to that psychology. Once you abandon it, you will forfeit the respect and support of people of kindly impulses.

The corridors of our Congresses and legislative assemblies are cluttered up with reformers with the tendencies of ancient savages. They would give every policeman a blanket warrant to seize us for some petty infraction, every judge an autocratic power to throw us into jail and every gaoler a lash for our backs.

The fact that we are humans, with natural weaknesses as well as strengths, is forgotten too often by the modern Pharisees who think in terms of bolts and bars and not of benevolence and compassion.

Safety for Savings

A savings bank in Manchester, N. H., is closed by the State Bank Commissioner who finds that one-fourth of all the deposits entrusted to its care have been invested in Colorado irrigated land.

We can neither fathom nor approve the civic outlook of the bank managers as shown by such an investment of the people's money.

If a savings bank can lay claim to the thrift of the people of its community it certainly accepts the responsibility of investing their deposits largely if not entirely in that community and in that State.

New Hampshire has plenty of idle land which could be put to fruitful uses and no one would say that its local industries are incapable of further expansion.

Our savings bank laws in Massachusetts encourage 70 per cent of the total deposits to be used for the development of Massachusetts real estate of established value or of good prospect. The balance can be invested only in a class of securities restricted by the State and measured by their solidarity and earning capacity over a period of years.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

In grafting plants the detached bit of living tissues is not planted in the soil, but is made to unite with the tissues of another plant, the host or stock. In grafting, the whole plant is not reproduced, since the graft is served by the roots of the stock and any of its own; but it grows and forms its own leaves and flowers and fruit.

H. G. Wells

Grafting insures a real, though partial, reproduction. Sometimes only a single bud is grafted, as with roses or peaches, and is then inserted under the bark at the side; or whole stems are made to unite end-to-end at their cut surfaces.

In many animals, artificial propagation could be carried out on a similar scale; but they are not usually of any commercial value. The only exceptions are bath-sponges. These can be cut into little pieces, each of which will grow into a new sponge; and experiments are being conducted to see whether this method can be made commercially useful.

But the most extraordinary method of artificial reproduction is that which we have already mentioned in Book 2—reproduction not by any procedure so mild as cutting or grafting, but by the really drastic method of rubbing the animal through a fine-meshed sieve of finest bolting-silk until it is totally disintegrated into single cells and small cell-groups.

The mere cell-sediment which is first produced begins to organize itself into separate balls and lumps. Finally each lump, provided it is neither too large nor too minute, will organize itself into a miniature animal once more.

Before this power, the fable of the Hydra pales; an organism which can have every vestige of its organization destroyed and whose scattered debris can reorganize itself into hundreds of new and perfect organisms, is indeed hard to destroy.

In the hydroid Clava, which normally has the sexes separate, it has been found possible to make hermaphrodite individuals; such will sometimes grow out of cell-debris formed when a male and female individual are ground up and dissociated together.

A fertilized newt's egg, up to the time when it forms definite cell-layers, can be constricted into two parts by a fine hair, and each of the two halves may survive and grow into a whole newt; we can produce artificial twins.

If we could but get at the earliest stage of our own development, doubtless we could equally well persuade a human egg to do at our will what it occasionally does at its own—divide into two and give rise to identical twins.

Sec. 7. A Note on the Regeneration of Lost Parts.

We turn now to a series of phenomena which are not in themselves reproductive but which are very evidently related to the reorganization of detached bits of one individual to form others, which is the essential reproductive process.

It is an all-too-familiar fact that if we lose a limb or even a tooth or finger, we cannot replace it; and all the creatures with whom we have everyday dealings suffer the same limitations.

In fact, Mr. Everyman would be likely to assert that the capacity for regeneration was one of the points which separated animals from plants.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, June 10—The rumor persists, although frequently denied, the Charles M. Schwab mansion a few steps from the beginning of Riverside Drive is to be demolished. It is perhaps the best known residence in town since the wrecking of Senator Clark's moss green gabled castle on Fifth ave.

The Schwab house was built some 20 years ago when the Drive was in the robust flush of aristocratic opulence and the course of its construction filled many columns in the daily press. It was one of the first houses to have a huge electrical pipe organ, a common equipment today.

The wide sweep of terraced lawn and the high spiked iron fence were something of a novelty even in that day. On each side of the yard is the cast iron statue of a mill puddler, symbolic of the great steel master's humble beginning as one of "the Carnegie boys."

Many of the oaken doors, dormer windows and mantels were removed from historic estates in France. Megaphonists of the rubberneck wagons continue to call out the many wonders as visitors are halted before the gates. In earlier days it blazed nightly with light.

Mr. Schwab gave many memorable parties there to millionaire friends, celebrated opera singers, authors, painters and novelists. But for the past 10 years it has been cloaked in somnolent gloom. The lawn is well cared for but, save at intervals, the place appears remote and shuttered.

The steel magnate spends most of his time at his large country place at Loretta, Pa., where he is interested in stock raising, and at his favorite recreation spot—Monte Carlo. Frequently on trips to New York he stops at one of the quiet hotels where serenity is not sacrificed for rushing service.

If the Schwab home comes down it will remove about the last of the celebrated town houses skirting the rippling Hudson. The old Bishop Potter place long ago made way for a sky-shooting apartment house. Only the marble-fronted palace of a cigarette millionaire, clinging like one of those tiny villages to a Pyrenean crag, remains.

* * *

Fifth ave.'s private homes have suffered the fate of those on Riverside Drive. When Judge Gary's enormous red bricked house was wrecked to make way for the pale white shaft known as Pierre's hotel, Millionaire's Row became almost a solid phalanx of deluxe and smug apartment towers, known only by numbers.

* * *

Like the old story of the late Marcus Loew, who purchased the great house on the Delmar acres and was wandering through it several months later. During his prowl he opened what he thought was a closet door—and found 18 more rooms.

* * *

Frisco anxiously inquired of Sidney Skolsky the other day if Helen Twelvetrees happened to be any relation to Alice Woods?

* * *

An old school day friend telephoned the other night he was bringing his son whom I had never seen around to call. I dug up a few spools and gimcracks I thought might amuse and expected to play pat-a-cake and tell him he was "a nice little man." But after 10 minutes the lad, who proved to be a raw meat eating 180-pounder, departed, "I need sleep," he explained. "This New York gin is the McCoy."

* * *

Then there is the fellow who asked my frank opinion of a short story he had written about three years ago. I told him my honest opinion it was terrible. Since then he has written two successful novels and everywhere I go—there he is, surrounded by admiring readers, while I try to crawl under rugs and things.

* * *

"In my block," writes T., 48th st., "there are 13 speakeasies where I can get anything from beer to cointreau. There are regular bars, brass rails, old time bartenders and little dishes of coffee, cloves and orange peel. I should be bothered about the passing of the saloon."

Keep on patronizing them and there are a lot of other things you will not have to bother about. Including living.

Small Bullets. Two Dead

Much Power in Little Things

"Here's the smell of the blood still; all the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. Oh, oh, oh!"

According to others, the dinosaurs were wiped out when volcanic eruptions filled the atmosphere with dust, making it unfit for the monsters to breathe and cutting off the full force of the sun's actinic rays which dinosaurs needed.

And, on the other hand, AN IDEA, without size, shape or weight, ten billion times smaller than the smallest germ, gives to human beings the law of gravitation, the steam engine, the spinning jenny, the electric light and everything worth while that we possess.

All of which leads to the fact that in modern prohibition-bootleg civilization a very powerful thing is the little bullet.

The bigness or littleness of things is made clear to our minds BY COMPARISON. You realize how small these little bullets are when you see them lying in the palm of a hand.

These bullets from a tiny pearl-handled revolver were taken from the dead bodies of Mrs. Guy Bates Post, who was the well-known American actress, Adele Ritchie, and her most intimate friend, Mrs. Doris Palmer. The former, according to the officials, killed her friend, then killed herself.

Reckless BULLETS, reckless WORDS, reckless making of laws, reckless disregard and contempt of law are at the foundation of our crime wave and our prohibition-bootleg civilization.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Give Them the Breaks!

Dear Miss Robinson:

My engineer and I had an argument last evening. I am a locomotive fireman. He was telling me about his son, 15 years of age. It seems the boy doesn't care much for his studies. He is a lover of music, a dreamer. He asked me what I would do with a boy like that. My answer was this:

Elsie Robinson

"Fred, if I had a son and I had my choice to govern his life, I would not care if he became a great man, a man of wealth or position—that doesn't mean anything. I would want him to be what my mother taught me to be—a lover of music and art—a dreamer who could see beauty in all things—who could work and sweat and smile when things went wrong—who would be tolerant—who would give the other fellow a break—who would forgive and forget—who would have faith in his fellow man. A SON WITH AN UNDERSTANDING HEART. That's the kind of a son I would pray to God to give me."

Fred said to me: "You have been that way yourself all your life and what did it get you? You are 32 years of age and you don't have a dime to show for it."

"Yes," I said, "financially, you're right. But I have lived and traveled, worked and loved; given two-thirds of what I earned away; dined with millionaires and slept with hoboes, and everywhere I have been I have found beauty in everything. That's all that really matters, anyway."

"Well, look at me," says Fred. "I am only 37 years of age and I own three houses, a nice car and money in the bank, and I don't give a damn about music or art or beauty, and I don't care what the others fellow does."

That was our conversation. I wish you would print it and give us your viewpoint. If you had a son, Miss Robinson, what would you want him to be?

BRUCE ALLEN STEELE.

If I had a son—

I had a son, Bruce. Raised him myself. Knew all the sweetness and joy of being a mother, and all the pride and fear of being a father. And dreams—so many different dreams. Dreams of seeing him rich and powerful—or just well and happy and beloved. But always with the dreams went fear. Fear of making some mistake that might hurt in the years to come. There was so much in life—what should I choose for him? How should I set his feet straight? I hadn't chosen wisely for myself, or set my own feet straight—then, how could I guide him?

Over and over I asked myself those questions, Bruce, as thousands of mothers and fathers are asking them today. And at last there seemed to me but one answer. He was my boy. But he wasn't me. He didn't have my soul—and I didn't have his. We were two separate creatures. I could love him absolutely, but I couldn't decide life for him. I couldn't choose what he was to be. BUT I COULD GIVE HIM THE BREAKS. AND TAKE A CHANCE HE'D MAKE GOOD.

That's what I did with my son, Bruce. And I've never been sorry. My boy died when he was 21. That isn't very long counted in years. But counted in character it was plenty. He lived long enough to make good. I don't know whether he'd have been a lawyer, or a locomotive engineer—a millionaire or a hobo—and I don't care. HE WAS A MAN. That was enough.

Tell that to Fred, Bruce. Tell him to give the boy the breaks. Love him and believe in him and give him all he has—and take a chance on the rest. And to never be sorry if he ——— him a lot. For love is worth anything it costs.
